I. ISSUES CALLING FOR ACTION BY THE ECONOMIC AND SOCIAL COUNCIL

4. At its third plenary meeting, held on 11 May 2001, the Commission adopted one resolution and decided to submit it to the Economic and Social Council for action. The text is as follows:

225 (XXI). THE ESTABLISHMENT OF AN ESCWA CONSULTATIVE COMMITTEE ON SCIENTIFIC AND TECHNOLOGICAL DEVELOPMENT AND TECHNOLOGICAL INNOVATION

The Economic and Social Commission for Western Asia,

Recognizing the vital role played by the development of scientific and technological capabilities and technological innovation in achieving the goals of sustainable development,

Recognizing also the need to integrate and coordinate the endeavours of all the parties concerned with the development of scientific and technological capabilities, including bodies from the public, joint and private sectors and the institutions of civil society, to employ technological innovation in order to promote the productivity and competitiveness of the production and services sectors in member countries,

Noting the possibilities which technological innovation capabilities offer with regard to facing the challenges and demands of globalization and the new systems and measures relating to the quality of products, the preservation of intellectual property rights and environmental protection,

Inspired by the specialized committees for the support of development endeavours based on scientific and technological development established by the other United Nations regional commissions,

1. Decides to establish a consultative committee on scientific and technological development and technological innovation, the main responsibility of which will be to sponsor endeavours aimed at scientific and technological development and technological innovation. The committee shall be composed of experts from the institutions of the public, joint and private sectors and of civil society, and from research centres involved with scientific and technological development and technological innovation in member countries, and shall have the following duties:

(a) To advise on the endeavours exerted by member countries with a view to acquiring modern technology and support such endeavours with regional and international expertise, with particular reference to information and communications technology, biotechnology and new materials technology;

(b) To propose ways of integrating and coordinating efforts aimed at transferring, adapting and mastering this technology, and promoting regional cooperation in these fields;

(c) To advise on priorities related to the programmes of work and medium-term plans adopted by ESCWA in the fields of developing scientific and technological capabilities and technological innovation;

(d) To follow up on the resolutions and recommendations of international and regional conferences relating to the development of scientific and technological capabilities and technological innovation which are attended by member countries; and to coordinate efforts related to the implementation of such resolutions and recommendations;

2. Decides also that this consultative committee on scientific and technological development and technological innovation shall hold its meetings at least once every two years, with effect from 2002;

3. Requests the Executive Secretary to follow up implementation of this resolution and to submit a report on the progress that has been achieved in this regard to the Commission’s twenty-second session.

B. OPENING OF THE SESSION

13. The opening meeting of the session was held under the patronage of the President of Lebanon, General Emile Lahoud, who was represented at the meeting by His Excellency Mr. Mahmud Hamud, Minister for Foreign and Emigrants Affairs of Lebanon.

14. The Executive Secretary read out a message from the Secretary-General to the twenty-first session. In that message, the Secretary-General said that it gave him great pleasure to send his greetings to the twenty-first session of the Commission. He said that ESCWA played a critical role in bringing global issues to the attention of the region and conveying regional concerns and aspirations to a world-wide audience.

15. He expressed his satisfaction that the Commission would be discussing the Agreement on International Roads in the Arab Mashreq and indicated that adoption of that Agreement would be a landmark in the life of the Commission.

16. He also expressed his satisfaction that the agenda of the Commission included the HIV/AIDS epidemic, and described this as a good example of preventive action.

17. He noted that the Commission was operating under significant budgetary constraints and pointed out that the mobilization of extrabudgetary resources was one way of overcoming such constraints. He thanked the countries which had made generous donations to the Commission and, in particular, Kuwait, Lebanon, Saudi Arabia and the United Arab Emirates, and expressed the hope that the Commission would continue to receive financial support.

18. The Secretary-General expressed his regret over the continuation of conflict in the region, and pledged that the United Nations would continue to do its utmost in the search for peace in the region and to fulfil the aspirations of all countries in the region for stability, prosperity and peace.

19. The Executive Secretary of ESCWA, Ms. Mervat Tallawy, delivered a statement which she began by congratulating Lebanon on the first anniversary of the liberation of South Lebanon. She expressed the hope that all the occupied Arab territories in Palestine and the Syrian Arab Republic would be liberated and that the suffering of the people of Iraq would end. She also expressed support for the Palestinian people and their struggle.

20. She welcomed the participants and expressed her gratitude for having been given the opportunity to serve the region through her appointment as Under-Secretary-General of the United Nations and Executive Secretary of ESCWA. She paid tribute to the previous Executive Secretary of ESCWA, Mr. Hazem El-Beblawi, and thanked him for his endeavours during his term of office. She expressed the hope that cooperation would continue in order to achieve the objectives of ESCWA and re activate its role as a regional coordination body, a role that was central to its mandate and its programmes as the representative body of the United Nations in the region.

21. In reviewing the current economic and social situation in the region, the Executive Secretary noted that, while in 2000 economic performance in the region had generally improved, it remained less than impressive. Oil continued to be the motivating force behind economic activity in the region.

22. She noted that the region's external debt was equivalent to 90 per cent of the region's GDP, which was much higher than the corresponding ratio in other regions. Furthermore, intraregional trade represented only 10 per cent of the region's total trade, which was low when compared to East Asia or Europe. In addition, FDI flows into the ESCWA region represented less than 1 per cent of the world FDI figure. While the tourism sector had grown, the number of tourists visiting the region accounted for a mere 2.5 per cent of the total world figure.
23. In the social sphere, she noted that ESCWA countries had made considerable advances, especially in the field of health. Educational enrolment rates at all levels had risen and qualitative educational development had generally occurred. Illiteracy rates had declined considerably, but remained high.

24. She stressed that the failure to link education to labour markets, the inability of economies to create new job opportunities at rates sufficient to absorb the pool of available manpower and poor regional coordination of manpower movement were among the major challenges confronting the region. Population movement was a central social issue in the region, which had given rise to a number of problems with serious social and economic consequences.

25. She referred to the “forced displacement” caused by the many disputes over the last decades and, in particular, the Israeli occupation of the territories of some Arab countries.

26. Because of economic transformations, the challenges of globalization and the social cost of increased mobility, speedier communications and technological changes, holistic social policies were required. ESCWA was currently preparing a study on the integration of social policies in the region in order to establish a clear and integrated social vision.

27. The Executive Secretary then reviewed development priorities for the region, which would guide and be reflected in the Commission’s forthcoming programme of work. The most important of those priorities were: the comprehensive and integrated management of water resources and the updating of water policies; rationalization of the use of energy; the development, adaptation, deployment and “indigination” of technology; raising the efficiency of transport in the region, in view of its vital role in promoting regional economic development; and the adoption of a forward-looking approach in formulating plans, policies and alternatives.

28. She emphasized the importance of the Commission’s financial status to its programme of work and, in particular, extrabudgetary resources. She announced that, because of the Commission’s lack of extrabudgetary resources, the secretariat was proposing to facilitate the provision of additional funds for ESCWA programmes on a voluntary basis. She hoped that she could count on the support of the delegates for that proposal.

29. In closing, she expressed the hope that the session would mark the inauguration of efforts towards integration, symbolized by the Agreement on International Roads in the Arab Mashreq. That Agreement would be the first step towards such integration.

30. The representative of the President of Lebanon, His Excellency Mr. Mahmud Hammud, Minister of Foreign and Emigrants Affairs, made a statement in which he welcomed the participants. He said that Lebanon was proud to host ESCWA in its capital and ready to provide every possible facility and all the support necessary to enable the Commission to continue to play its important role.

31. Lebanon was continuing its reconstruction efforts, with the emphasis on developing the individual in an atmosphere in which security and the rule of law prevailed and in which economic activity based on a free economy and individual initiative were encouraged.

32. The agenda of the session contained important items which concerned major economic and development challenges. He made specific reference to the Agreement on International Roads in the Arab Mashreq and the issue of sustainable human development, and stressed that the human being is the ultimate target of any political or economic activity.

33. With reference to the issue of globalization, he noted that there was general agreement that this represented an opening-up of the world and was a fact that would have to be dealt with realistically and rationally at every level. Its challenges might best be confronted by an Arab common market.
34. Information and communications technology stimulated economic and social development. The countries of the region should therefore develop their natural resources and human capacities and strengthen their ties with one another in order to achieve regional integration, in which ESCWA could play a key role.

35. He believed that those States which championed globalization should encourage an effective North-South dialogue in order to create a sound climate for international cooperation.

36. He expressed the hope that liberated South Lebanon would be included in ESCWA activities and assisted in the rebuilding of its towns and villages. He concluded by expressing his best wishes for the success of the session.

C. MAIN TOPICS OF DISCUSSION AND RESULTS

1. Adoption of the Agreement on International Roads in the Arab Mashreq
   (Agenda item 5)

37. The representative of the secretariat said that the Agreement on International Roads in the Arab Mashreq was the first agreement that had been negotiated and concluded under the auspices of ESCWA. As such, it represented a turning point in the work of the Commission and a practical step on the road to effective regional and interregional cooperation.

38. On 10 May 2001, at the twenty-first session of the Commission, ESCWA member countries unanimously adopted the Agreement in its amended form. It was signed by the following eight member countries: Egypt, Iraq (initialed), Jordan, Lebanon, Palestine, the Syrian Arab Republic, the United Arab Emirates and Yemen (initialed).

39. The Secretary of the Commission announced that the Agreement would be open for signature between 10 May 2001 and 31 December 2002.

2. Invitation to States Members of the United Nations and/or of the specialized agencies not members of the Commission to participate in the capacity of observer in the twenty-first session of the Commission
   (Agenda item 6)

40. No requests to participate in the capacity of observer in the twenty-first session were received.

3. Consideration and adoption of the report of the Preparatory Committee on the activities of the Commission
   (Agenda item 7)

41. The report of the Preparatory Committee was adopted as submitted. Nine resolutions were also adopted, in the form in which they appear in this report.

4. The role of ESCWA in the coordination of regional activities
   (Agenda item 8)

42. This item is covered in E/ESCWA/21/5. The representative of the secretariat of ESCWA discussed some of the most important initiatives undertaken by the United Nations and ESCWA with a view to promoting regional cooperation between United Nations regional bodies. He referred to the annual coordination meetings which the United Nations recommends should be held in order to bring together the regional commissions and all United Nations funds, programmes and agencies and other institutions which carry out regional activities. He noted that the secretariat of ESCWA had been the first of the five commissions to respond to that call by convening the first meeting of the Regional Inter-agency
Coordination Group. That meeting considered the Group, which was established pursuant to a 1995 initiative of the secretariat, the most suitable forum and the most appropriate mechanism for the strengthening of regional cooperation. The Group has been redesignated the United Nations Regional Coordination Group.

43. It was reported that the Group held a number of meetings at which bilateral and multilateral cooperation between the regional organizations was reviewed and existing cooperation mechanisms were evaluated, together with ways of developing and institutionalizing such mechanisms. Discussions also touched on priorities and multidisciplinary subjects of common interest which could be more efficiently dealt with by the combined efforts of the United Nations system.

44. During the discussion, the following points were also raised:

(a) Questions were asked regarding the role of the United Nations Resident Coordinator and UNDP Resident Representative and his links with the coordination activities undertaken by ESCWA, and regarding coordination between United Nations bodies and member countries, and his impact on such activities;

(b) The representative of the secretariat responded that ESCWA was concerned with coordination at regional rather than country level and made every endeavour to become acquainted with the priorities and views of member countries when preparing its programme of work. There was a bilateral agreement between each of the five United Nations regional commissions and UNDP for the strengthening of mutual cooperation. At country level, there were a number of regional advisors who offered to members services that could prove useful in carrying out a regional comparison that could be useful at country level and in rationalizing the use of available resources;

(c) The Executive Secretary said that the aim of coordination was to avoid duplication and conserve financial resources. ESCWA was the regional arm of the United Nations in the area.

5. Efforts to combat HIV/AIDS in the ESCWA region (Agenda item 9)

45. Under this agenda item, the representative of WHO reviewed document E/ESCWA/21/7. He noted that HIV/AIDS was a multidimensional health problem, and that the number of those carrying the virus throughout the world exceeded 34.3 million. He said that the aim of the report was to review the status of the disease and the factors that affected its proliferation everywhere in the world, with particular emphasis on the ESCWA region. He dealt with the effect of HIV/AIDS on urban development and its negative impact on economic activities. Of particular significance was the fact that the virus is the main cause of death among young people. He referred to the re-emergence of tuberculosis, and the fact that AIDS victims are very susceptible to infection with tuberculosis because of the deficiency in their immune systems. He reviewed the situation in ESCWA and neighbouring countries, saying that there were some 220,000 cases of the virus in the region. With reference to the dynamics of the proliferation of HIV/AIDS, he said that efforts to combat the virus, as yet in their infancy, could enable the region to control and prevent the spread of the disease.

46. The representative also identified the most important features of a successful approach to the problem, which included the following:

(a) The political leadership of each country must support endeavours to combat HIV/AIDS and dedicate some of its authority, capabilities and resources to that end;

(b) Public awareness must be raised through the media;

(c) The social sectors that are most at risk of contracting HIV/AIDS must be targeted;
(d) Young people must be protected through the preparation and implementation of courses of instruction on means of guarding against the virus;

(e) Every sector concerned, including the political, the religious, the media and the non-governmental sector, must be involved.

47. The deteriorating social situation affected the spread of the disease. While the most socio-economically deprived sectors were those most at risk of contracting HIV/AIDS, the most vulnerable sectors varied from country to country according to occupation, social position, sexual practices and methods of drug abuse, geographical area and income.

48. With regard to the HIV/AIDS situation in the countries of the ESCWA region, the representative said that there was a huge discrepancy between the number of reported cases and the number of estimated cases, because of a widespread deficiency in the reporting of cases and monitoring in general. He enumerated the ways in which the virus is most commonly transmitted in the countries of the ESCWA region, which include transfusions using infected blood, drug abuse and mother-to-fetus transfer. He commended the role of the WHO Regional Office for the Eastern Mediterranean in the Joint United Nations Programme on HIV/AIDS, and said that the joint planning operation for combating HIV/AIDS was dependent on comprehensive regional measures being pursued, with the focus on the countries of the ESCWA region, in three fields. Those fields were protection from sexually-transmitted diseases and treatment of those infected; the availability of care for HIV/AIDS victims, those infected with sexually-transmitted diseases and vulnerable sectors; and communication and information on HIV/AIDS.

49. The representative concluded his review by referring to methods of combating HIV/AIDS, some of the most important of which are the carrying out of practical studies; the formulation of national strategies; making use of global studies in the field of protection against the virus; expanding the number of protective options; employing new approaches that have proven effective, suitably adapted to suit the society and its culture and customs; focusing on the most vulnerable sectors; and action to change high-risk behaviour.

50. The Government of Saudi Arabia said that it was obliged by the Islamic sharia to impose the death penalty on those who trafficked in or smuggled drugs. Such activity spread corruption, depravity and mental and physical degeneration, and was directly associated with the spread of dangerous diseases including HIV/AIDS. He therefore called upon the ESCWA countries to cooperate and exchange information and health and media expertise, with a view to restricting the spread of the HIV/AIDS virus and supporting endeavours aimed at finding appropriate remedies and protective vaccines. Such endeavours should be coordinated with the relevant parties, and it was to be hoped that ESCWA would be a centre for the exchange and dissemination of information and studies between its members, keeping them abreast of all the latest developments in the fight against this disease.

6. Selected issues of importance for the future of the ESCWA region
(Agenda item 10)

51. The representative of the secretariat introduced this item, as detailed in the following documents: E/ESWA/21/8/Add.1; E/ESWA/21/8/Add.2; E/ESWA/21/8/Add.3; E/ESWA/21/8/Add.4; and E/ESWA/21/8/Add.5.

(a) Facilitation of international transport of goods in the ESCWA region

52. The representative of the secretariat summarized the study entitled “Facilitation of international transport of goods in the ESCWA region”. The six-part study gives a detailed description of the freight transport procedures used in five States and the outcome of an analysis, in addition to making recommendations.
53. He identified the problems and the obstacles to freight transport operations, which include the high cost of procedures, the length of time required for the procedures and illegal practices.

54. He reviewed the recommendations made on the basis of the study, some of the most important of which are the following: procedures should be simplified and laws brought up to date; procedures should be clarified; unlawful practices should be eradicated; the labour force should be developed; data and information technology should be exchanged electronically; and institutional frameworks should be developed. He noted the need to establish national committees for the facilitation of transport which would bring together all the parties involved, both governmental and non-governmental, and have the authority to adopt and implement the recommendations in collaboration with the relevant parties.

55. During the discussion, the following matters were raised:

(a) In reply to a request that, in view of the fact that developments and reforms had been carried out in some of the countries covered by the study, the dates on which the data contained in the report were collected should be specified, the representative of the secretariat said that with respect to most of the countries involved, the data had been collected at the end of 1999. The data on Egypt had been gathered in April 2000;

(b) The question was raised as to the feasibility of publishing appendices containing all the data, and of that data being periodically updated and monitored by means of working papers, to be submitted to the Commission, on report-related work that had been carried out and improvements resulting from the adoption of study recommendations. In response, the representative of the secretariat said that the programme of work made no provision for the study to be updated. He therefore requested member countries to convey to the secretariat in writing the developments that had taken place in this sector. The Executive Secretary said that, in view of the importance of updating information and data in ESCWA publications in general, member countries could assist by assuring the provision of extrabudgetary resources;

(c) A proposal was put forward concerning a follow-up mechanism in which ESCWA could participate. Such a mechanism could be instituted by establishing a committee for the facilitation of international transport which would have the necessary authority to be effective. In response, the representative of the secretariat said that attempts were being made to form such a committee, along the lines of those that had been established in other regions. What was important was the existence of the political will to implement that suggestion;

(d) In response to a concern that was raised with regard to the security factor and the reconciliation of that factor with efficient freight transport procedures, the representative of the secretariat said that there was no conflict between the facilitation of freight transport and security because technological developments, particularly with regard to x-ray screening, were able to guarantee that a high degree of security could be rapidly assured.

(b) Strengthening expertise and networking in the field of foreign direct investment in ESCWA member countries

56. The representative of the secretariat began his review by referring to the basic goal of FDI and the issue of the environment and trade, and the importance of those matters to ESCWA countries and the Commission’s programme of work. He discussed some of the most significant foreign investment-related problems, which included the absence of bodies for the collection of data on this type of investment and the lack of local ability to manipulate and analyse such data with a view to drawing-up the policies and strategies required. He also referred to the factors that have contributed to the decrease in savings within the national economy and the need for investment.
57. He concluded his review by stressing the need to mobilize extrabudgetary resources in order to enable the secretariat to provide the necessary support in this area. He also affirmed the need to coordinate the endeavours of Government and private sector institutions with a view to implementing the economic systems under discussion.

58. There was a general discussion on FDI and reference was made to the huge diversity in the amounts of FDI made to the Arab countries and the need to improve data collection in this field. Further reference was made to the negative impact of Israeli policy on FDI and the weakness of strategies.

(c) Sustainable development: the role of trade and environment

59. With respect to trade and environment, the representative of the secretariat said that the costs of environmental protection must be taken into consideration in the production process. Ways of exploiting the opportunities created by the environmental conditions imposed on exports were some of the most important of the issues under discussion.

60. The various export industries and, in particular, small and medium-sized enterprises (SMEs), would be most affected by the environmental constraints that would be imposed. It would be necessary to develop economic systems that took into consideration the status of the production process in export industries and propose practical measures to cover the environmental cost while, at the same time, helping to find innovative solutions that could be applied in many ESCWA countries.

61. During the discussion, it was noted that taking environmental considerations into account could lead to improvements in the quality of exports and of agricultural exports in particular. The environment was therefore not a burden, but had the potential to support economic growth.

62. It was also noted that pressure was being brought to bear on developing countries to give priority to environmental issues. Given the huge cost of respecting such issues, which member countries were unable to bear, that priority would be bought at the expense of economic growth. Developing countries could not be compared with developed countries in this respect. The representative of the secretariat said that successful examples did exist of the opportunities created by the environmental constraints being exploited, and if member countries failed to respect environmental issues, they would lose the markets in which they enjoyed a relatively good position. Euro-Mediterranean Partnership funds had been allocated to cover environment-related costs, and assistance would also be available to support export industries and, in particular, SMEs.

(d) Information technology and development

63. The representative of the secretariat began his intervention by referring to the pivotal role of information and communications technology, biotechnology and new materials technology. He also referred to the expansion of knowledge-based production sectors.

64. He discussed the opportunities offered by the acquisition of appropriate technology and reviewed the position of ESCWA region countries in that respect.

65. The representative of the secretariat reviewed the requirements for the successful acquisition of appropriate technology, which include the following:

(a) Capacity-building in the field of research and development: language and culture;
(b) The formulation of appropriate policies and strategies and promulgation of suitable legislation;
(c) Capacity-building and independence, in the field of research and development in particular;
(d) The necessary facilities for the assimilation and transfer of technology;
(e) The involvement of Governments in awareness campaigns;

(f) Guaranteed access of low-income groups to the benefits of the digital economy;

(g) Cooperation with the private sector in expanding and modernizing the infrastructure;

(h) Cooperation with the institutions of civil society in fields including awareness and education, promoting the participation of women and guaranteeing the access of disadvantaged groups to the benefits of the digital economy.

66. The representative referred to the part played by ESCWA in providing support for member countries in the technological field. Assistance had been given in the formulation of technology policies; a regional initiative had been launched for the building of technology parks; coordination activities had been undertaken with regard to electronic commerce; and field activities had been carried out in certain countries.

67. Much remained to be done with respect to the establishment of technology parks and nurseries and industrial units using high-level technologies and the stimulation of FDI and promotion of its role in the recruitment and development of technology.

68. The establishment of an ESCWA consultative council on scientific and technological development and innovation would promote cooperation and the exchange of expertise between member countries and the coordination of technology-related strategies, and stimulate essential training.

(e) Social policy for sustainable development

69. The representative of the secretariat began his review of this item by referring to the recommendation made by the Committee on Social Development concerning the feasibility of the secretariat of ESCWA conducting a comprehensive survey on social policy in the Western Asia region. It was the secretariat’s intention to prepare an analytical study on the status of policies in various fields of social development. The study would be the equivalent of a survey of the current status of social policies in the region and would be conducted as part of an ambitious project entitled “Towards Integrated Social Development Policies in ESCWA Countries”. He said that this project aimed to build a structure for social policies in the Commission’s member countries which would make it possible for those countries to exchange successful experiences and expertise. It would also help to achieve regional integration with regard to integrated social policies intended to attain sustainable and balanced socio-economic development. The project would be submitted to donor States and parties with a view to obtaining the extrabudgetary resources to fund its implementation in every Arab country.

70. He noted the number of activities undertaken as part of subprogramme 2 on improvement of the quality of life, and stressed the need to focus on specific high-priority fields that would serve a basic aim, rather than dissipating endeavours on a wide range of fields. It was suggested that the structure of ESCWA should be reviewed and the funds available for its activities allocated to best serve this priority. The Executive Secretary agreed with this view.

7. Mobilization of extrabudgetary resources

(Agenda item 11)

71. Under this item, the representative of the secretariat reviewed document E/ESCWA/21/9, referring to two important aspects of the issue, namely, secretariat policy on the mobilization of extrabudgetary resources and the uses to which those resources were devoted.

72. She recalled ECWA resolution 45 (IV) of 28 April 1977 concerning the financial status of the Commission’s programmes and the strengthening of the Voluntary Fund, which invites member countries to determine the amount of their contributions to the Fund. She also recalled resolution 79 (VII) of 22 April
1980 on the strengthening of the Financial Contributions Account, which urges all member States to strengthen the Financial Contributions Account of ECWA so that the Commission may discharge its responsibilities vis-à-vis the growing needs of the member States.

73. The representative said that contributions to the Financial Contributions Account over the past 22 years had amounted to US$ 1.25 million.

74. The Governments of France and the Netherlands had made contributions that had been placed in the French Trust Fund and the Netherlands Trust Fund, but neither Fund had been replenished since 1991. The secretariat had also received extrabudgetary resources from certain other United Nations bodies and regional and international organizations, and she cited the most important of those donors.

75. The relocation in 1997 of the Commission from its temporary headquarters in Amman to its permanent headquarters in Beirut had been funded by four States, namely, Kuwait, Lebanon, Saudi Arabia and the United Arab Emirates.

76. In 1999 Saudi Arabia and the United Arab Emirates agreed to honour the amount pledged to cover the cost of the ESCWA move by allocating resources to support ESCWA activities. This sum, a total of $1.3 million, was added to the Trust Fund for ESCWA Regional Activities.

77. In view of new funds being received by that Trust Fund, the Executive Secretary had established a committee which had set the conditions to be met by projects submitted by the relevant technical division for funding from the Trust. Those conditions were the following:

(a) The project has a strong bearing on the Commission’s regular work programme;
(b) The project is potentially beneficial to ESCWA member countries;
(c) The project aims to strengthen cooperation and coordination with other United Nations agencies and NGOs in the region;
(d) The project has actual and/or potential co-sponsors;
(e) Implementation of the projects should not interfere with implementation of activities financed by the regular budget.

78. At the end of 2000 the secretariat had resolved to finance, at an estimated cost of $204,495, the following three projects, which were implemented that same year:

(a) Enhancing the ESCWA Role at the Doorstep of the Twenty-first Century;
(b) The Future Role of Oil in the Economies of ESCWA Member States: Market Stability and the Implications of the World Trade Organization Agreements;
(c) The Expert Panel on Information Technology and Development Priorities: Competing in a Knowledge-based Global Economy.

79. The representative of the secretariat concluded her review by referring to the following five projects, which the secretariat had decided to implement at a cost of $145,000:

(a) Globalization, the economy and the contribution of Arab women;
(b) Regional Human Development Report;
(c) Regional Symposium on Children;
(d) The development of a database on an integrated transport system in the Arab Mashreq (ITSAM);
(e) Empowerment of the Arab Family to Enhance its Role in Development and Social Cohesion.
80. In the course of the discussion, the need was noted for the institutional and organizational restructuring of ESCWA and the review of priorities. If ESCWA was to be able to perform more effectively, there was also a need for extrabudgetary resources to be increased, in view of the negative growth of the United Nations regular budget.

8. Date and venue of the twenty-second session of the Commission
   (Agenda item 12)

81. It was decided to leave this matter to the secretariat of ESCWA and the Chairman of the twenty-first session.

9. Adoption of the report of the Commission on its twenty-first session
   (Agenda item 14)

82. The Commission adopted the draft report on its twenty-first session with the proviso that the amendments that had been agreed upon should be incorporated therein.

10. Recommendation

83. A number of delegations then strongly supported the recommendation that ESCWA secretariat activities should focus on a limited number of priorities and be correspondingly restricted. It was also recommended that attention should be focused on Arab regional integration and the study of mechanisms that would activate such integration; and on reviewing the existing organizational structure of the secretariat in order to best serve Arab integration. Here the statement made by the Executive Secretary in her opening address should be recalled. She mentioned the possibility of holding, in response to the concerns of countries in this regard, a special session in the biennium 2002-2003, in order to review priorities and organizational structure.
III. ISSUES TO BE BROUGHT TO THE ATTENTION OF THE ECONOMIC AND SOCIAL COMMISSION FOR WESTERN ASIA

84. At its third plenary meeting, held on 11 May 2001, the Commission adopted a number of resolutions and decided to submit them to the Economic and Social Council for action or to bring them to its attention. Their texts are as follows:

Desirous of reinforcing the initiative taken by the secretariat in consulting member States and relevant United Nations offices on programme-related issues at the planning stage, in particular during the formulation of the medium-term plan and the programme budget,

1. Decides that the sessions of the subsidiary bodies of ESCWA shall be held not later than the end of the year prior to the holding of the session of the Commission, in order to avoid any confusion with the work of that session;

Noting also that the objectives, strategies and expected accomplishments of the proposed programme budget for the biennium 2002-2003 are consistent with those of the medium-term plan,

Conscious that a new mechanism for accountability throughout the United Nations system has been fully elaborated in the programme budget for the period 2002-2003,

Conscious also of the need for cooperation on the part of member States in assessing the relevance of the work of the secretariat and in providing feedback on the operational aspects of the new system of accountability now in place,

The Economic and Social Commission for Western Asia,

Recalling the medium-term plan for the period 1998-2001 and, in particular, paragraph 18.1,

Recognizing the importance of developing cooperation between member countries in order to ensure optimum use of its meager water resources,
Appreciative of the fruitful cooperation between member countries with regard to groundwater resources,

Taking into consideration the recommendations made by the Expert Group Meeting on Legal Aspects of the Management of Shared Water Resources, held from 8 to 11 June 2000,

Recalling also the programme of work for the biennium 2000-2001 of the Energy, Natural Resources and Environment Division in the field of water resources, and the proposed programme of work for the biennium 2002-2003, which was adopted by the Committee on Water Resources at its fourth session, held from 14 to 17 November 2000, which includes the development of appropriate mechanisms, similar to those applied in other United Nations regional commissions, for strengthening cooperation between member countries in the field of water resource management in general and shared groundwater in particular,

1. Urges member countries to increase the level of their cooperation in the field of water resources and, in particular, with regard to shared groundwater, water-related legislation and the management of demand, by creating within the Committee on Water Resources working parties specialized in the various technical aspects of the field, with a view to harmonizing methodology with respect to the management of such resources;

Recalling also the recommendations made by the Committee on Energy at its first and second sessions, held in November 1997 and November 1999 respectively.5

This should be achieved through the devising of institutional frameworks for their implementation;

2. Requests member countries to take the measures necessary to support the performance of activities related to the renewable energy promotion mechanism, with a view to strengthening regional cooperation in that field; to this end, the endeavours of national focal points for the regional mechanism should be supported.

235 (XXI). ADOPTION OF THE AGREEMENT ON INTERNATIONAL ROADS IN THE ARAB MASHREQ

The Economic and Social Commission for Western Asia,

Recognizing the increasing importance of the issue of the facilitation of transport and, in particular, of transboundary transport, in the light of contemporary trends including globalization and the establishment of free trade zones which make it necessary to take action to reduce the obstacles to international commercial traffic,

Recalling the recommendations made by the Committee on Transport at its first session, which was held at ESCWA headquarters in Beirut on 9 and 10 February 1999, and the declaration issued at that session on the adoption and development of an integrated transport system in the Arab Mashreq (ITSAM), of which the Commission took cognizance in its resolution 221 (XX),

Recalling also the recommendation made by the Committee on Transport at its second session, which was held in February 2001, to the effect that the draft agreement on international roads in the Arab Mashreq should be adopted,

Affirming that the ITSAM network represents the goal for the integration of the various means of transport in order to connect the countries of the ESCWA region, with a view to encouraging intraregional commerce, and link those countries with neighbouring regions, thereby serving international and transit commerce,

Recalling further that all transport-related activities in ESCWA are aimed at facilitating the transportation of goods and movement of persons on the regional network through taking action on a number of tracks, including the harmonization of basic transport infrastructure specifications, including the specifications for the regional road network, and that this is to be achieved through the preparation of the Agreement on International Roads in the Arab Mashreq,

Noting the careful stages in which the draft agreement was prepared and the fact that its present form was reached after taking into consideration the comments of member countries,

1. Adopts the draft agreement on international roads in the Arab Mashreq;

2. Requests the secretariat of ESCWA to intensify its endeavours and give the requisite priority to the development of the integrated transport system in the Arab Mashreq and facilitation of international commercial and passenger traffic in the region, with a view to benefiting from the increased volume of commercial and tourist exchanges between member countries and between the countries of the region and every country in the world;

3. Urges member countries to take the constitutional measures for ratification of the Agreement in order to ensure that it enters into force at the earliest opportunity.

236 (XXI). DESIGNATING THE SESSIONS OF THE COMMISSION AS THE FORUM FOR A BIENNIAL PLEDGING CONFERENCE

The Economic and Social Commission for Western Asia,

Recognizing the importance of mobilizing extrabudgetary resources in support of programmed activities,

Deeply concerned about the decline in extrabudgetary resources made available to the secretariat of ESCWA,

Aware of the sizeable contributions made to some of the other regional commissions to supplement their extrabudgetary funds,

Conscious of the role extrabudgetary resources may play in allowing the Commission to expand the scope of work for existing outputs to cover new countries, issues and dimensions,

Recognizing that the biennial session of the Commission would serve as the most suitable forum for a pledging conference to raise extrabudgetary resources in support of activities and projects, with relevant information circulated among member States prior to the session for their consideration,

1. Decides to hold a pledging conference during each session of the Commission;

2. Invites member States to increase contributions in order to finance the Commission’s extrabudgetary activities;

3. Requests the Executive Secretary to seek contributions from States other than ESCWA member States, organizations and individuals;

4. Further requests the Executive Secretary to provide member States with proposals regarding specific activities to be funded from extrabudgetary resources.

237 (XXI). DRAFT RESOLUTION REHABILITATION OF ECONOMIC SECTORS IN PALESTINE

The Economic and Social Commission for Western Asia,

Noting the difficult economic conditions being endured in Palestine as a result of the confrontation with Israel and the damage sustained by the Palestinian economic infrastructure in the course of that confrontation,

Convinced of the need to take practical measures to assist Palestine in rehabilitating its economic sectors,

1. Requests the Executive Secretary to include under the budgetary resources available to the secretariat activities to be planned by the secretariat and implemented in consultation with the relevant Palestinian institutions;

2. Further requests the Executive Secretary to take measures to ensure that the extrabudgetary resources necessary to finance such activities are available, by lobbying the relevant funding institutions.
