Summary

The Committee on Women of the Economic and Social Commission for Western Asia (ESCWA) held its fourth session under the theme “Promoting Economic Participation of Arab Women”, from 21 to 23 October 2009.

The work of the Committee on Women at its fourth session focused on three main themes. Under the first, participants discussed the Consolidated Arab Report on the Implementation of the Beijing Platform for Action: + 15, and identified the main obstacles, challenges and future prospects associated with work on full implementation of the Beijing Platform for Action and the outcome of the twenty-third special session of the General Assembly. Under the second theme, participants discussed promoting economic participation of Arab women, and the obstacles to it, with a view to eliminating them. Under the third theme, discussions focused on the follow-up to the recommendations made by the Committee on Women at its third session, and reviewed the report of the Executive Secretary on progress achieved in advancement of women since the third session, as well as the proposed programme of work for advancement of women for the 2010–2011 biennium.

This report contains a presentation of the recommendations made by the fourth session and the most important points discussed under each agenda item.

INTRODUCTION

1. The fourth session of the Committee on Women was held from 21 to 23 October 2009, pursuant to Economic and Social Commission for Western Asia Resolution 240 (XXII) of 17 April 2003, which was endorsed by the United Nations Economic and Social Council in its Resolution 2003/9 of 18 July 2004 on the establishment of a Committee on Women in the Economic and Social Commission for Western Asia (ESCWA), to hold its meeting once every two years beginning in 2004, with its first founding session held before the end of 2003. The Committee held its first founding session in Beirut on 4 and 5 December 2003, its second in Beirut from 8 to 10 July 2004, and its third in Abu Dhabi on 14 and 15 March 2007.

I. RECOMMENDATIONS OF THE COMMITTEE ON WOMEN AT ITS FOURTH SESSION

2. On the basis of General Assembly resolution 62/136 of 18 December 2007 on Improvement of the Situation of Women in Rural Areas, the outcome of the twenty-third special session of the General Assembly, and the Beirut Declaration on Arab Women Ten Years After Beijing: A Call for Peace, adopted by The Committee on Women at its second session, the Committee on Women decided to adopt the resolution set forth below:

Annex

A RESOLUTION ON THE FOLLOW-UP TO IMPLEMENTATION OF THE BEIJING PLATFORM FOR ACTION IN THE ARAB STATES AFTER FIFTEEN YEARS: BEIJING + 15

The Committee on Women in the Economic and Social Commission for Western Asia,

Recalling General Assembly Resolutions 60/140 of 16 December 2005, 61/145 of 19 December 2006 and 62/136 of 18 December 2007,

Recalling also the Economic and Social Council Resolution 2005/48 of 27 July 2005, on the Role of the Economic and Social Council in the integrated and coordinated implementation of the outcomes of and follow-up to major United Nations conferences and summits,

Cognizant of the reports on the status of Arab women and the appraisal of the progress achieved in the implementation of the Beijing Platform for Action: + 15 in Arab countries, particularly the Consolidated Arab Report of the Economic and Social Commission for Western Asia and the League of Arab States,

Noting with appreciation the progress made by the region towards the implementation of obligations under Beijing Declaration and Platform for Action, and the outcome of the twenty-third special session of the General Assembly, particularly in health and education, as demonstrated in their responses to the questionnaire addressed by the Secretariat of the United Nations to Governments in this regard,

Expressing satisfaction with the achievements made in recent years in the empowerment of women in the Arab region, which included new legislations to the benefit of women and the ratification of nineteen States of the Convention on the Elimination of All Forms of Discrimination against Women (CEDAW) and the withdrawal of some states of their reservations on some provisions of the Convention,

Expressing grave concern with regard to the deteriorating security situation and continuing wars and armed conflicts, which adversely affect the status of women in general and empowerment and sustainable human development in particular,
Expressing grave concern also at the continuing low participation of women in the economic and political fields and the continuing challenges hindering empowerment of women, such as the prevalence of illiteracy, high dropout rates of girls from school, poverty, unemployment, violence against women, and discrimination against women in legislations, in addition to some negative cultural traditions and social customs,

Recognizing the need to intensify efforts to promote empowerment of women and gender equality at the level of Governments, civil society, and United Nations organizations,

2. Calls on member countries to:

   (a) Emphasise the importance of political will in supporting and promoting gender equality, equity and justice, mainstreaming gender perspectives in policies, strategies and development programmes, and considering advancement of women to be a priority at both national and regional levels;

   (b) Increase financial and human resources allocated to policies, programmes and national mechanisms for women, and link the budgets for these to the overall budget;

   (c) Promote administrative reform and good governance in both public and private sectors, ensuring employment and job promotion of women;

   (d) Coordinate among foreign financing entities to ensure a fair distribution of financing and resolve the various problems facing women of all strata;

   (e) Build capacity of the national mechanisms for mainstreaming gender in national policies and engage men and train them in mainstreaming gender in development policies, as well as in women's rights in general;

   (f) Network with parliament and enhance participation of women associations and the civil society in addressing problems facing women;

   (g) Provide an enabling environment for the application of the Convention on the Elimination of All Forms of Discrimination against Women, raise awareness to women’s legal rights, and invite member countries to consider the possibility of acceding to the Optional Protocol to the Convention on the Elimination of All Forms of Discrimination against Women;

   (h) Continue to review and reform national legislations that discriminate against women, work towards enforcing existing laws, and train people working in legislative and law-enforcement bodies related to women’s legal rights;

   (i) Establish an information-and-data base disaggregated by gender, analyse and process indicators to identify gender gaps in various sectors, with the aim of making specific policies and strategies for advancing women;

   (j) Examine the possibility of establishment of observatories and early-warning systems at the national level to track and analyse social phenomena relating to the status of women, so that societal problems may be remedied before they escalate;
(k) Enhance participation of women in post-conflict development, conflict resolution and peacebuilding, and exercise due care towards psychological treatment, rehabilitation and inclusion of women victims of violence in Iraq, Palestine, the Sudan and Yemen, through adoption of local action plans to implement the provisions of Security Council resolution 1325 (2000);

(l) Encourage women to enter applied sciences and link their education to market needs, and update curricula and revise textbooks to remove images and ideas that discriminate against women and perpetuate a negative stereotypical image of women;

(m) Enact legislations to raise marriage age, tackle problems that cause girls to drop out of school in order to alleviate female illiteracy and poverty, develop literacy programmes, and enhance qualification and vocational training of women, particularly in rural areas;

(n) Raise the proportion of individuals using computers through promoting programmes aimed at teaching girls to use computers and the internet and develop their computer skills;

(o) Increase the rate of participation of women in the public sector and in administrative and official positions, qualify and train women to assume leadership positions, and enhance their performance;

(p) Increase rate of participation of women in decision-making positions by various means, including through quotas, training women to run for elections, and working towards increasing the number of women ministers;

(q) Provide and develop microfinance and soft loans for women to enable them to support themselves and their families, insure financial risks in order to encourage women to start small projects, provide markets for them, and build their project-management capacities;

(r) Develop health-awareness programmes and health and social insurance schemes for poor women, strengthen and develop social safety nets, and expand provision of protection and rehabilitation services for battered women.

3. Requests from ESCWA secretariat the following:

(a) Support the Centre for Women with additional human and financial resources, in order to upgrade it to the level of a division, alongside other divisions of ESCWA, with the aim of doubling efforts to assist member countries with empowerment of women;

(b) Strengthen the capacity of national mechanisms for mainstreaming the gender perspective in policies, plans and programmes, through capacity-building, training, technical assistance and consultation, preparation of studies, and provision of possibilities for inter-communication, and exchange of experiences and lessons of successful experiences;

(c) Strengthen capacity of member countries to implement and monitor the Convention on the Elimination of All Forms of Discrimination against Women, through capacity-building of national mechanisms, members of parliament, judicial institutions, civil society and the media, help States to withdraw their reservations on the Convention, and continue to raise awareness of decision makers of the Convention;

(d) Cooperate with the Arab Women Organization to implement a regional strategic plan for advancement of women, and promote the need for reviewing and amending laws to comply with the Convention on the Elimination of All Forms of Discrimination against Women;
(c) Support application of ESCWA guidelines, developed in cooperation with the United Nations High Commissioner for Refugees, on protection of rights of women living in conflict areas;

(f) Study feasibility of developing an index of gender and development specific to the Arab region, to identify and analyse the nature of the gender gap, with the aim of making specific policies and strategies for advancement of women;

(g) Study feasibility of establishing an observatory and a regional early-warning system, based on a recent information-and-data base disaggregated by gender, to track and analyse social phenomena relating to the status of women, so that societal problems may be remedied before they escalate.

II. TOPICS FOR DISCUSSION

A. PROMOTING THE ECONOMIC PARTICIPATION OF ARAB WOMEN

WOMEN’S CONTROL OVER ECONOMIC RESOURCES AND ACCESS TO FINANCIAL RESOURCES

(Item 5 (a) of the agenda)

3. Ms. Mona Shamali Khalaf, presented document E/ESCWA/ECW/2009/1. This study, which is part of the Women and Development series on women's control over economic resources and access to financial resources, addressed economic performance in the ESCWA region, particularly the economic status of women and the factors that hinder economic empowerment of women, as well as relevant policies that need to be adopted.

4. Ms. Khalaf started by pointing out the significant momentum acquired by the issue of women empowerment over the past decades, as a result of efforts made by women to claim their rights and the efforts of the United Nations. She added that empowerment of women is yet to be fully realized, especially in the Arab region, attributing this to the economic situation in the ESCWA region, characterised by slow economic growth, high unemployment rates, marked increase in the proportion of youth to total population and inability of the labour market to absorb this increase.

5. Ms. Khalaf proceeded from reviewing the economic situation in the ESCWA region in general to reviewing the situation of women in particular. She pointed out that though participation of women in economic activity has increased, it remains low compared with other regions. She noted that the gap between males and females in earned income has narrowed in favour of young educated women who have recently entered the labour market. Ms. Khalaf explained that the female labour force in Arab countries is mainly concentrated in the public sector. The private sector does not give priority to employment of women for several reasons, most notably, the dual role played by women within and outside the home, the disparity between the needs of the labour market and the areas of competency of women, and women’s lack of vocational and technological training. However, notwithstanding these obstacles, the situation has improved and a significant number of successful businesswomen became prominent in the management of their institutions. In this context, Ms. Khalaf outlined the main challenges facing businesswomen, such as acquiring financial management skills, recruiting efficient manpower, and securing funding for their institutions, as well as the high cost of public services.

6. Ms. Khalaf moved on to present the factors that impede economic empowerment of Arab women, classifying them into two main categories: barriers related to social and cultural institutions, and others related to economic and financial resources. In relation to the first category, she pointed out that Arab countries have signed agreements calling for gender equality at work, but have not implemented them comprehensively. Women are not fully aware of their rights, and live in a society dominated by patriarchal customs and traditions, all of which impede economic equality with men. As for the second category, women often give up their rights to possession of economic resources, even though such rights are enshrined in law. Moreover, banks, which are the main source of funding in the region, usually have reservations towards granting loans to women. Microfinance programmes set by non-governmental organizations are a way out of this impasse. However, the limited values of the loans they provide and failure by these organizations to offer additional help, such as training and education, limit the positive impact on empowerment of women.

7. Ms. Khalaf highlighted policies that could empower Arab women economically, both at the State and civil-society levels. At the level of the State, these include: (a) increasing participation of women in political life, through legislative, executive and local authorities, to allow them to contribute to development of laws and policies that would improve their status, as well as the lives of members of society; (b) promoting social policies that would enable women to achieve balance between paid work and care for the family, and ensuring that recruitment procedures in public sector are not prejudicial to women; (c) adopting gender-responsive government-budget planning; (d) focusing on preparation of gender-disaggregated statistics derived from reliable sources and updated regularly, with emphasis on unification of definitions, formulations and research methods.

8. Ms. Khalaf addressed the need to ensure adequate infrastructure, such as transport, communications, electricity and water services, in order to ease the domestic burden borne by women and facilitate their entry into the labour market, in addition to providing health services and social security for women in cities and rural areas. She stressed the importance of training women and providing them with the skills required in the labour market, by organizing all-year-round free training courses in various professional fields, in cities, suburbs and rural areas to meet the needs of women and provide them with job opportunities compatible with the specifics of the various regions.

9. Ms. Khalaf emphasized the need to improve the image of women in school textbooks by changing the stereotypic division of roles between women and men and enhancing the role of the media, with the aim of promoting community awareness of the importance of the role of women in change and development.

10. The proposed policies for civil society were: (a) enhancing awareness of women of their legal, political and economic rights; (b) training women in skills needed to develop their businesses and benefit from the technical expertise provided by the competent international organizations; (c) encouraging international funding agencies to support development of financial institutions that offer lending to small and medium enterprises (SMES).

11. The presentation was followed by a discussion in which the participants commended the presentation, and made observations on some points, including on the issue of association of inheritance with religious concepts, and the issue of statistics, their accuracy and timeliness. Ms. Khalaf responded by reaffirming the importance of the inheritance issue when dealing with economic participation of women. However, she voiced preference for it to remain in the document in a section drafted by member countries in a manner they deem appropriate and that does not impinge on religion. On the issue of statistics, she noted that because of the difficulty of obtaining inclusive statistics in the Arab region and of comparing them, she had to use figures from international institutions, particularly the International Labour Organization (ILO), which may differ from the figures issued by each country. Some of the participants seized the opportunity to give a quick overview of the achievements of their countries in improving economic participation of women and the programmes and plans they adopted.

12. The discussion concluded with a set of recommendations made by member countries, in addition to those made by Ms. Khalaf. These included: (a) the need for women who assume decision-making positions to main interest in, rather than overlook, women's affairs; (b) the need to educate women and men of the importance of the work of women and its positive impact on the national economy; (c) the need for focusing on development of a knowledge-based economy; (d) the importance of establishing business incubators to encourage outstanding work, sharing successful experiences, and establishing specialized training institutes at the national and regional levels to graduate women entrepreneurs; (e) the necessity of studying the labour market in order to identify its needs, thereby reducing unemployment. rates. The participants stressed the need for establishing an economic observatory for Arab women to monitor changes and formulate appropriate policies.

B. IMPACT OF THE GLOBAL FINANCIAL CRISIS ON WOMEN IN THE ARAB REGION

(Item 5 (b) of the agenda)

13. Ms. Yemen Hamaki presented document E/ESCWA/ECW/2009/IG.1/4, which is a study that examines the impact of the global financial crisis on women in the Arab region. By way of introducing the main theme of implications of the crisis on the Arab countries in general and Arab women in particular, Ms. Hamaki started with a summary of the causes of the global financial crisis, how it moved from the United States to other economies around the world, and the plans adopted to address it.

14. Ms. Hamaki pointed out that, like all other countries, the Arab region has been affected by the economic crisis due to its linkages with the economic superpower (i.e United States of America). However, the effects were varied and concentrated primarily in the Gulf region. The most significant of the repercussions was the increase of unemployment rates in the Arab countries, which adopted a policy of financial expansion, in an attempt to stimulate demand, reduce layoffs and increase investments.

15. Ms. Hamaki went on to point out that women were more affected by repercussions of the crisis than men, because the level of unemployment among women is essentially higher than for men. She attributed the severe effects on women to several reasons including: (a) increase in laying women off, since redundancies normally fall mostly on weaker groups; (b) contraction, due to the decline of external demand, of the economic sectors that employ women, such as the spinning and weaving industry; (c) significant decline in demand for the products of the informal sector, which employs women workers; (d) lower remittances from workers abroad, on which women rely primarily for supporting their families. The cumulative effects of these developments reduced the ability of women to secure food for themselves and their families, and impacted education and health services negatively, leading to exacerbation of malnutrition, dropping out of school, and health problems.

16. The situation worsened due to the failure of policies fashioned to deal with the economic crisis to take gender into account, as well as due to their lack of focus on the advancement of women. Most of the resources that were pumped into the economy were directed towards basic facilities such as electricity, water and sanitation sectors. Since these are controlled by men, increased expenditure on them created new job opportunities for males but not females. Moreover, reduction of interest rates by central banks had negative impact on women who rely heavily on interest on their savings.

17. In conclusion, Ms. Hamaki presented several proposals aimed at enhancing the role of women in facing the financial crisis, including: (a) building a comprehensive, accurate and up-to-date database to monitor the extent to which women are affected by the global financial crisis; (b) facilitating micro-lending, since micro-enterprises are extremely important in dealing with the challenge of poverty; (c) coordinating among the various institutions dealing with empowerment of women; (d) exchanging experiences among countries in the region; (e) developing plans for training that take into account the capacities of women and are appropriate to their reproductive health.

18. The presentation was followed by a discussion in which the participants commended the study and its important conclusions. However, they expressed the wish that similar studies focus in the future on Gulf countries, since these were the most affected by the crisis, and have adopted specific policies to address its consequences, as in Kuwait, for example. In addition, participants stressed that the lack of coordination among countries, institutions and organizations at local and regional levels leads to some waste in both funds and efforts spent on studies. They stressed the need for putting an end to this waste, through coordination among countries, and called on ESCWA to take a lead on this issue.
19. The participants concluded with a set of recommendations on alleviating the consequences of the financial crisis on Arab women, added to those made by the report, namely: (a) the need for institutions that provide flexibility in the labour market; (b) the need for coordination among local, regional and international donors to mitigate the effects of the global financial crisis; (c) in view of the importance of consumption, adoption of policies on both the supply and demand sides, rather than on the supply side only.

20. Ms. Hamaki ended by stressing that a lesson to be drawn from the global financial crisis is the need for Arab integration to avoid the effects of similar crises in future.

C. CONSOLIDATED ARAB REPORT ON THE IMPLEMENTATION OF THE BEIJING PLATFORM FOR ACTION: + 15
(Item 4 of the agenda)

22. Ms. Khafaji presented an overview of the main achievements of the Arab countries, and the obstacles and challenges encountered, in promoting gender equality and the empowerment of women. The major achievements include: (a) amendments to some legislations to effect gender equality; (b) accession of three new Arab countries to the Convention on the Elimination of All Forms of Discrimination against Women; (c) development of national strategies to eliminate violence against women; (d) conduction of media campaigns on the rights of women; and (e) provision of services to battered women. These accomplishments have been achieved through political will in Arab countries and activities of civil society organizations working on women’s issues. Ms. Khafaji also outlined the challenges and obstacles, which are: the gap between law and reality, information-media deficiencies, practice harmful to the health of women, absence of women-related statistics, and armed conflict.

23. The Consultant proceeded to present progress made in implementation in the main areas of concern in the Beijing Platform for Action, as well as the initiatives and measures specified by the Final Document of the twenty third special session of the General Assembly. She presented examples of the achievements of Arab countries and some of the lessons learned. In addition, she mentioned obstacles and challenges that still impede the implementation of the main areas of concern: (a) burden of poverty on women; (b) education and training of women; (c) women and health; (d) violence against women; (e) women and the economy; (f) women in authority and decision-making positions; (g) women’s human rights; (h) women and the media; (i) women and the environment; (j) girl-child.

24. In the third part of her report, Ms. Khafaji dealt with institutional development in the Arab countries. She focussed on the national mechanisms established in the Arab countries to work on achieving gender equality, and enumerated some of the achievements, namely: (a) collecting various data on participation of women and gender-based gaps in many fields; (b) identification of focal points, with the aim of influencing ministries and government administrations; (c) implementation of decentralization in addressing women’s issues, by establishing branches of the relevant national mechanisms. Moving on to consider the obstacles and challenges faced by the national mechanisms, she pointed out to: lack of monitoring and follow-up mechanisms, poor coordination between these mechanisms and non-governmental organizations, and not dealing with relations between men and women. She stressed the need for strengthening coordination among mechanisms, supporting exchange of experiences and expertise on the advancement of women at the national and regional levels, and effective cooperation with the civil society organizations active in this area.

25. In the fourth and last part of the report, Ms. Khafaji presented four main challenges to the advancement of women facing Arab countries, describing each and the plans adopted to deal with it. The first challenge is posed by negative cultural traditions and legislative gaps that continue to impede advancement of women and progress towards gender equality and the gap between legislation and practice. The second challenge is poverty and its impact on economic participation of women, particularly rural women. Moreover, women find it difficult to break out of poverty, for several reasons, such as spread of illiteracy, high dropout rates from school for girls, and high unemployment among women. The third challenge relates to the low rate of participation of women in decision-making and the sphere of politics in the Arab region. The fourth challenge is the weak monitoring, follow-up and coordination mechanisms and tools that make it hard to define clear policies aimed at bridging the gender gap. Ms. Khafaji then outlined a set of plans that could be adopted to address these challenges, including: (a) raising awareness of the legal rights of women; (b) confronting all forms of violence against women; (c) eliminating widespread illiteracy among women; (d) caring for women’s health; (e) increasing the rate of participation of women in parliament and elected councils; (f) making available to women jobs that were hitherto inaccessible to them.

26. In the discussion that followed, participants commended the efforts of Ms. Khafaji in preparing this report, as well as in introducing the amendments proposed during the expert meeting that preceded the session. However, attendees made observations on citing countries and the space given to each, agreeing to adopt the principle of balance. The report was adopted, as was the resolution issued on the third day of the fourth session of the Committee on Women.

D. PROGRESS ACHIEVED IN THE FIELD OF ADVANCEMENT OF WOMEN SINCE THE THIRD SESSION OF THE COMMITTEE ON WOMEN
FOLLOW-UP ON THE IMPLEMENTATION OF THE RECOMMENDATIONS MADE BY THE COMMITTEE ON WOMEN AT ITS THIRD SESSION
(Item 6 (a) of the agenda)

27. An audiovisual presentation was made outlining the most prominent activities undertaken by the Centre for Women in ESCWA, such as the studies, meetings and training workshops upon which the recommendations of the Committee on Women at its third session were based. Discussion on how to develop the work of the Centre followed. Participants stressed: (a) the need to avoid presenting studies at meetings of the Committee on Women in future; (b) expansion of the list of experts in ESCWA to include experts from the Gulf; (c) increasing the number of staff in the Centre for Women in ESCWA. The meeting also addressed the following topics: (a) possibility of having a special programme for the Gulf countries within the Committee on Women; (b) monitoring the needs of member countries and developing programmes according to the individual requirements of each country, since these differ from one country to another, and setting timetables for implementation of such programmes. Participants called for strengthening coordination between the Bureau of the Committee on Women and the Centre for Women in ESCWA, and between the Centre and the Organization of Arab Women.

28. Participants stressed the need for including in the work programme of the Centre for Women future projects on, for example, the following: (a) developing a regional strategy aimed at improving the status of Arab women; (b) establishing a regional Arab observatory to monitor all progress indicators to compile comprehensive Arab indices for all fields, distributed annually to the countries concerned to fill in the data and return them to the observatory, with the aim of developing an Arab report based on quantitative and qualitative Arab indicators, compatible with the international set of indicators.

E. FOLLOW-UP ON THE IMPLEMENTATION OF ACTIVITIES RELATED TO THE ADVANCEMENT OF WOMEN UNDER ESCWA PROGRAMME OF WORK
(Item 6 (b) of the agenda)

29. Document E/ESCWA/ECW/2009/IG.1/5 was presented. This document reviewed the activities on advancement of women within the framework of ESCWA work, which was carried out by the Centre for Women in ESCWA since the third session of the Committee on Women, held in Abu Dhabi in March 2007.
30. The presentation reviewed the studies prepared by the Centre for Women, the meetings and training courses organized by it for member countries and non-governmental organizations, as well as the brochures, newsletters, and information material produced to enhance communications with all bodies concerned.

31. The presentation then reviewed the technical and training consultancies provided by the Centre for Women to member countries on strategic planning and gender mainstreaming in programmes, as well as on preparation of national reports on the implementation of the Declaration and Beijing Platform for Action and the Convention on the Elimination of All Forms of Discrimination against Women.

32. The presentation was followed by an enumeration of the major accomplishments achieved with assistance provided by ESCWA to member countries in relation to advancement of women. These were manifested in the increasing demand for technical assistance, advisory services and capacity-building. The presentation concluded by referring to the main financial and human resources obstacles to progress in advancement of women, the removal of which requires support from member countries.

F. DRAFT PROPOSED PROGRAMME OF WORK FOR THE BIENNENIUM 2010-2011
IN THE FIELD OF ADVANCEMENT OF WOMEN
(Item 7 of the agenda)

33. The secretariat presented this item on the basis of document E/ESCWA/ECW/2009/IG.1/6, which included the proposed programme of work for the 2010-2011 biennium, in the area of women advancement, within the framework of sub-programme 6 on advancement of women of the draft strategic framework for the 2010-2011 biennium, which is implemented by the Centre for Women in ESCWA, for member countries to consider the proposed programme and make comments thereon.

34. The programme pointed out that ESCWA member countries have made progress in advancement of women, but still need to make further efforts to achieve full economic and political participation of women. The sub-program focussed on two key areas for achieving participation: strengthening the capacity of the national mechanisms for the integration of gender issues in national policies, plans and programmes and strengthening the capacity of member countries to implement and follow up the Convention on the Elimination of All Forms of Discrimination against Women. The programme contained a set of expected outputs to be achieved in the 2010-2011 biennium.

35. The participants were requested to discuss the components of the proposed work programme and give their comments on the proposed activities. They highlighted the following: (a) the need for continuing to provide support and assistance to national mechanisms (in particular, technical assistance and training workshops) through auditing, planning and follow-up from a gender perspective; (b) the need for male participation in all meetings, workshops and courses, in order to mobilize men for women's issues as general societal issues; (c) the importance of focussing on extra-budgetary funds for implementation of more projects, particularly in rural areas.

36. The participants also called on ESCWA to strengthen the budget, through consolidation of partnerships with organizations and leaders of civil society, with the aim of coordinating projects for advancement of women with donors. In addition, they called on ESCWA to convene a unified Arab meeting including representatives from ministries of religious affairs, so that these ministries do not oppose implementation of some of the articles of the Convention on the Elimination of All Forms of Discrimination against Women and other issues related to women's rights, such as housing, citizenship and property ownership.

37. Participants requested ESCWA to prepare a questionnaire to be distributed to national mechanisms to monitor their needs, in order to avoid waste of resources and enhance communication and interaction between the central administration and member countries, so that they be informed of meetings and aware of what is addressed.

G. DATE AND VENUE OF THE FIFTH SESSION OF THE COMMITTEE ON WOMEN
   (Item 8 of the agenda)

38. The meeting agreed to hold the fifth session of the Committee on Women in ESCWA headquarters in Beirut in October 2011.

H. OTHER MATTERS
   (Item 9 of the agenda)

39. The Committee did not discuss any subject under this item.

III. ADOPTION OF THE REPORT OF THE COMMITTEE ON WOMEN
     ON ITS FOURTH SESSION
     (Item 10 of the agenda)

IV. ORGANIZATION OF WORK

A. VENUE AND DATE OF SESSION

41. The Committee on Women held its fourth session in Bristol Hotel in Beirut, from 21 to 23 October 2009. The work was distributed over six meetings.

B. OPENING

42. At the opening session, Ms. Lulwa Al-Awadi, Secretary-General of the Supreme Council for Women in Bahrain and President of the third session of the Committee on Women, gave a speech welcoming attendees and wishing success for the work of this session. She commended the Committee's choice of agenda items, particularly the item on the promotion of economic participation of Arab women. She went on to stress the need to involve the Arab Women Organization (AWO) of in unified projects concerning the status of Arab women, in view of the effective role played by the Organization in promoting the role of women in society; as well as the need to coordinate Arab positions in dealing with women's issues in regional and international forums, and supporting joint Arab cooperation in this area.

43. Ms. Sima Bouhouth, Assistant Secretary-General for Social Affairs in the League of Arab States, then began her speech by congratulating ESCWA on its 35th anniversary, praising its efforts in providing technical assistance to various developmental programmes in the region. Ms. Bouhouth went on to review cooperation and coordination between the League of Arab States and the United Nations, commending the efforts of the League and the programmes and activities carried out at the local and regional levels in the area of empowering women and promoting gender equality. She concluded by calling for more courageous committed work in order to keep women's issues a top priority for development.

44. Ms. Rachel Mayanja, Special Adviser to the Secretary-General on Gender Issues and Advancement of Women, focussed in her speech on the importance of year 2010 for women's issues, as the convening of the Commission on the Status of Women in New York from 1 to 12 March 2010 coincides with the meeting of the General Assembly to mark the fifteenth anniversary of the adoption of the Beijing Declaration. Ms. Mayanja highlighted the achievements made since the 2005 evaluation, but pointed out that challenges remain, especially at the level of economic participation of women. She concluded by emphasizing the United Nations full support for the efforts of Governments and civil society organizations in the Arab region for ensuring full implementation of the Beijing Declaration + 15.

45. In his speech, Mr. Badr Al-Dafa, the Under-Secretary-General of the United Nations and the Executive Secretary of ESCWA, thanked the First Lady of Lebanon for her sponsorship of this session. He paid tribute to the big strides made by the Arab societies in promoting the role of women in health, education, and social affairs, and pointed out the need for three elements to keep pace with international trends in empowerment of women, namely: legislations; financial support to ensure continuity of policies and programmes for women and work on implementing international conventions; and cooperation, in the work for advancement of women, among the public sector, the private sector, and local and international agencies.

46. Ms. Najwa Nasser, representing the First Lady of Lebanon, Mrs. Wafa' Michel Suleiman, who sponsored this session, gave a speech enumerating achievements in the field of women empowerment in Lebanon, thanks to the tireless efforts of the Lebanese Women Organization, chaired by the First Lady. These achievements cover education, legislation, politics, society and networking. In conclusion, Ms. Nasser stressed that women's issues should be presented to both women and men, and emphasised the need for securing real, and not just theoretical, support from men for women’s demands.

47. At the opening session of the meeting, a documentary film on achievements of Arab women and challenges they face was presented. The film showed a sample of four successful women who occupy leadership positions in the professions, services, agriculture and the judiciary, highlighting the ability of women to prove themselves in areas that have always been the preserve of men and to play an active role in promoting the economies of their countries.

C. ATTENDANCE

48. The session was attended by representatives of Bahrain, Egypt, Jordan, Kuwait, Lebanon, Oman, Palestine, Qatar, the Syrian Arab Republic, the Sudan, United Arab Emirates, and Yemen. Representatives from Djibouti and Tunisia and representatives of boards, bodies, national committees and official departments specializing in women in the Arab region also attended as observers.

49. The session was also attended by representatives of the Regional Bureau for Arab States of the United Nations Development Fund for Women, and representatives of governmental and non-governmental organizations, national and regional programmes, and research centres and institutes. Experts on women's issues also attended as observers. The list of participants is given in Annex I to this report.

D. ELECTION OF OFFICERS

50. Pursuant to Article 18 of the Rules of Procedure of ESCWA, which provides that member countries shall assume the presidency of the subsidiary bodies of the Commission on a rotating basis, in Arabic alphabetical order, established by the United Nations, Ms. Najwa Kassab Hassan, head of the delegation of the Syrian Arab Republic, presided over the fourth session of the Committee on Women.

51.
