The following four topics were discussed, with reference to research papers prepared by the secretariat: social justice and the new development approach; economic policies supportive of social justice; intergenerational justice and access to natural resources; and social justice: monitoring and measurement.

The session concluded with the adoption of the Tunis Declaration on Social Justice in the Arab Region, recommendations made by the senior officials’ segment, and resolutions to be submitted to the Economic and Social Council for its action or attention. INTRODUCTION

1. The Economic and Social Commission for Western Asia (ESCWA) held its twenty-eighth session pursuant to its resolutions 158 (XIV) of 5 April 1987 on holding the sessions of the Commission on a biennial basis, and 196 (XVII) of 31 May 1994 on the frequency of sessions of the Commission.

2. The present report sets out the proceedings of the twenty-eighth session of the Commission, which consisted of eight plenary meetings, including four senior officials meetings and four ministerial dialogues, and four closed meetings. The session was held in Tunis, from 15 to 18 September 2014.
I. ISSUES CALLING FOR ATTENTION AND ACTION BY THE ECONOMIC AND SOCIAL COUNCIL

3. At its plenary meeting of 19 September 2014, the Commission adopted the following Declaration and resolutions to be submitted to the Economic and Social Council for its attention and action.

TUNIS DECLARATION ON SOCIAL JUSTICE IN THE ARAB REGION

1. We, the representatives of the member States of the Economic and Social Commission for Western Asia, assembled in Tunis at the twenty-eighth ministerial session of the Commission, commit to social justice as a core value of the Arab and Islamic culture and a foundation for secure, cohesive and prosperous societies.

2. We shall strive to achieve equality and equity in our countries, eradicating poverty, securing environmental sustainability and building partnerships for development, as enshrined in international treaties and declarations.

3. We note with extreme concern the daunting challenges that the Arab region is facing in all aspects of human development. We affirm the importance of addressing threats to social cohesion and combating water scarcity, food and water insecurity, environmental pollution, climate change and the increasing debt of poor Arab countries, which further impede efforts towards social justice and sustainable development.

4. We are deeply alarmed by the escalating conflicts; the continuous loss of lives, livelihoods and resources; and particularly the religious and sectarian tensions that detrimentally affect large segments of our society and undermine social cohesion.

5. We strongly condemn the Israeli military offensives targeting Palestinian civilians and infrastructure, and the latest attack on the Gaza Strip in July and August 2014. We recognize that the Israeli occupation and its policies and practices of discrimination, racial segregation, apartheid and settlement-building and the Judaization of East Jerusalem undermine the basic rights of the Palestinian people in the occupied territories and the Syrian population in the occupied Golan Heights.

6. We denounce the revival of racist calls to religious purity of States – namely by the Government of Israel and extremist groups in the region – a concept which represents a flagrant violation of the rights of peoples to equality and non-discrimination.

7. We strongly condemn that our societies face vicious waves of terrorism that limit their opportunities to achieve development and social justice goals, by threatening their resources and capabilities and destroying the development gains that their peoples and Governments secured over decades. We urge organizations in the Arab region to examine the dangers of all aspects of the economic blockade and of money laundering and its links to terrorism financing, and to propose measures to limit such dangers that threaten development, peace and security.

8. We also reaffirm that social justice is as a fundamental prerequisite for peace, security and social cohesion, all of which are, in turn, critical for realizing social justice.

9. We recall the Commission’s resolution 304 (XXVII) of 10 May 2012 on the role of participation and social justice in achieving sustainable development, in which it encourages member States to intensify their efforts to mainstream social justice into sustainable development strategies and address the concerns of all social groups.
10. We refer to the 2012-2016 action plan of the League of Arab States\(^1\) and the Amman Declaration on Priorities of the Arab Region for Inclusive and Sustainable Development Post-2015,\(^2\) which highlight the link between inclusive development and social justice in the region.

11. We commend the efforts and progress made in ratifying relevant human rights treaties and instruments; in achieving the Millennium Development Goals; and in participating in global processes leading to the adoption of the post-2015 development agenda.

12. We affirm the commitment of Arab States to advancing youth development, especially for those with special needs, and stress the urgent need to overcome the obstacles to youth economic and social empowerment. We also stress the importance of empowering older persons and enhancing their contribution to the development process.

13. We stress the crucial role of sound macroeconomic policies in advancing the mutually reinforcing objectives of social justice and inclusive development, to combat inequalities among social groups within countries.

14. We shall reduce unemployment through indiscriminate means to create employment opportunities; developing productive sectors; addressing the mismatch between educational outcomes and the needs of the labour market; and improving economic governance systems.

15. We affirm the need to develop policies, establish mechanisms to combat violence against women and undertake special measures to increase women’s effective participation in decision-making.

16. We shall develop strategies that expand social protection, without exclusion or marginalization to address the requirements of different population groups.

17. We recognize the importance of promoting participatory mechanisms that strengthen the role of civil society institutions and other stakeholders in the formulation, implementation and evaluation of sustainable development policies, especially social protection policies.

18. We shall promote the right to health and education, without exclusion or marginalization, as stipulated by the International Covenant on Economic, Social and Cultural Rights, to empower individuals.

19. We stress the urgent need for policies to ensure the preservation and management of increasingly scarce natural resources, in a manner that respects the environment and guarantees intergenerational justice.

20. We are determined to promote a sense of responsible citizenry and civic engagement in decision-making.

21. In this context, We request the Commission’s secretariat:

(a) To incorporate the elements of social justice in its work on the preparation, monitoring and implementation of a post-2015 development agenda and sustainable development goals, and establish clear implementation and monitoring mechanisms to ensure the achievement of national, regional and global development goals, in accordance with country capabilities;

(b) To strengthen the policy capacity of member States in all relevant fields through training, research and normative work, including through the production of reports on justice, poverty, inequality,

\(^1\) The five year plan (2012-2016) stemmed from the second thematic session of the ministers of social affairs of the League of Arab States, held in Cairo, on 28 May 2012.

\(^2\) Adopted by the Arab ministers of social affairs as an outcome document of the Conference on Priorities of the Arab Region for Inclusive and Sustainable Development Post-2015, held in Amman, on 11 May 2014.
social protection, social inclusion, women’s empowerment, natural resource management, renewable energy subsidies, access to technology and good governance, as well as trade policies and their role in achieving development;

(c) To provide advisory services and technical support to member States to improve national policy responses so as to enhance social cohesion, tackle youth and women’s development challenges, and promote youth and women’s participation and empowerment in decision-making processes;

(d) To monitor the effects of the Israeli occupation of Palestine, its implications in the light of regional and international developments and its detrimental impact on the attainment of the multiple dimensions of justice in Palestine and the region as a whole, so as to uphold the human rights-based and legal efforts to condemn the Israeli occupation and support the Palestinians in demanding their rights;

(e) To create a measurement tool to monitor progress in the area of social justice in the Arab region and strengthen the capacity of member States and statistical agencies to collect, build, analyse and disseminate harmonized related indicators.

22. From Tunis, we reaffirm our commitment to social justice for our peoples as a vision of and path to a bright, dignified and prosperous future.

316 (XXVIII). Support for the Palestinian people

The Economic and Social Commission for Western Asia,

Referring to General Assembly resolution 67/19 of 29 November 2012 concerning the status of Palestine in the United Nations, in which it accorded to Palestine the status of non-member observer State in the United Nations,

Referring also to General Assembly resolution 68/12 of 26 November 2013, in which it proclaimed 2014 the International Year of Solidarity with the Palestinian People,

Referring further to General Assembly resolutions 68/14 concerning the special information programme on the question of Palestine of the Department of Public Information of the Secretariat, 68/13 concerning the Division for Palestinian Rights of the Secretariat and 68/12 concerning the Committee on the Exercise of the Inalienable Rights of the Palestinian People, all of which adopted on 26 November 2013,

Referring to Economic and Social Council resolution 2014/26 of 11 July 2014 concerning the economic and social repercussions of the Israeli occupation on the living conditions of the Palestinian people in the Occupied Palestinian Territory, including East Jerusalem, and the Arab population in the occupied Syrian Golan,

Recalling its resolutions 307 (XXVII) of 10 May 2012 and 292 (XXVI) of 19 May 2010, in which it reaffirmed the inalienable rights of the Palestinian people, supported the efforts of the Palestinian people and Palestinian Authority towards the establishment of a Palestinian State that extends its authority over all its territory on the basis of United Nations resolutions, and called for intensifying efforts to raise awareness on the rights of the Palestinian people and on the violations of those rights,

Taking note of the report of the Secretary-General of the United Nations prepared by the ESCWA secretariat in 2014 on the economic and social repercussions of the Israeli occupation on the living conditions of the Palestinian people in the Occupied Palestinian Territory, including East Jerusalem, and the Arab population in the occupied Syrian Golan,\(^1\) which highlights the continuing deterioration of the economic and social conditions as a result of persistent Israeli practices and policies that violate international law, especially collective punishments against the Palestinian people, the Gaza blockade, the illegal expansionary settlements on Palestinian territory in the West Bank and East Jerusalem, the construction of the separation wall, denying Palestinians and their institutions the right to access and use their natural resources, including agricultural land and water resources, in addition to the excessive use of force by the Israeli army and security forces, the continuous destruction of Palestinian houses and institutions with impunity, and violence committed by Israeli settlers against the Palestinians and their properties and religious sites,

Also taking note of the report of the Special Rapporteur on the situation of human rights in Palestinian territories occupied since 1967, published on 13 January 2014,\(^2\) and the concluding observations of the Committee on the Elimination of Racial Discrimination,\(^3\) which was “particularly appalled at the hermetic character of the separation of two groups, who live on the same territory but do not enjoy either equal use of roads and infrastructure or equal access to basic services and water resources,” and considered that this constitutes a breach of article 3 of the Convention on the Elimination of All Forms of Racial Discrimination and a violation of the right of the Palestinian people to self-determination and to economic and social development,

Referring to decisions 594 and 595 adopted by the League of Arab States at its twenty-fifth summit on 26 March 2014, which reiterate the inalienable rights of the Palestinian people, including the right to self-determination and the right of return of the Palestinian refugees, and the categorical refusal of the recognition of Israel as a Jewish State,

Noting with appreciation that, despite all difficulties, the Palestinians are persistently exerting all efforts to build their institutions, realize development and achieve a just and comprehensive peace on the basis of their legitimate rights under international law in the occupied territory,

Also noting with appreciation the efforts of the ESCWA secretariat to support the Palestinian people, build its institutions and raise the awareness of the international community of Palestinian rights as guaranteed by numerous international resolutions, charters and conventions,

Taking into consideration the increasing needs of Palestinian institutions and bodies in the process of building a state and achieving development despite occupation, as indicated by the number of requests for technical cooperation received by the secretariat from the Palestinian Government,

\(^1\) A/69/81–E/2014/13.

4. Condemns with the strongest terms the Israeli assault on the Gaza Strip, being another Israeli attempt at breaking the will of the Palestinian people; and stresses that targeting civilians and their houses and infrastructure, as seen in Gaza, constitutes further violations of the International Humanitarian Law, which emphasizes the need to hold Israel accountable for those crimes;

5. Condemns the practices and policies of the Israeli occupation in the Occupied Palestinian Territory, which amount to apartheid, cause a continuous deterioration of their economic and social conditions and violate the collective and individual rights of the Palestinian people;

6. Calls upon member States:

   (b) To support Palestine’s efforts to obtain full membership in all specialized international agencies and to join international charters and protocols as an inherent right of the State of Palestine;

   (c) To enhance efforts to support and reinforce the resilience of the Palestinian people, so as to ensure their continued existence on their land and mitigate the economic and social repercussions of the Israeli occupation and related policies;

   (d) To observe the International Year of Solidarity with the Palestinian People through new or scheduled activities, in particular cultural ones;

   (e) To observe the International Day of Solidarity with the Palestinian People on 29 November through special activities and/or ensure the highest possible level of representation in the activity organized by the ESCWA secretariat in that regard;

   (f) To encourage Arab and foreign civil society organizations to launch initiatives to enhance the capacities of the Palestinian people and support their effort to obtain their full rights and provide moral and material support for those initiatives where possible;

   (h) To contribute to the mobilization of international support for the reconstruction of the Gaza Strip and effectively participate in the international donors conference to be held in Egypt in October 2014;

   (i) To encourage the subsidiary bodies of ESCWA to give special attention to the conditions of the Palestinian people;

7. Requests the ESCWA secretariat to raise the level of its support for the Palestinian people and their institutions at all levels, including the enhancement of human resources for subprogramme 7 to support the implementation of the following:

   (a) Providing normative and technical assistance to the Palestinian institutions according to the Palestinian needs;

   (b) Developing more activities on Palestine and organize special events in observance of the International Year of Solidarity with the Palestinian People, with the aim of raising awareness and mobilizing support for the Palestinian people in Palestine and abroad, and securing the widest media coverage for those events;

   (c) Submitting periodic reports to the ministerial sessions of the Commission on the practices of the Israeli occupation that violate the economic and social rights of the Palestinian people and other rights guaranteed by international law, charters and conventions;
(d) Monitoring the economic and social repercussions of the Israeli occupation, mobilizing regional partners to support the Palestinian people and their institutions in Palestine and abroad, assisting them in achieving development and exerting pressure and advocacy to help them obtain their full rights as guaranteed by United Nations resolutions and international conventions and charters;

8. Requests the Executive Secretary to follow up on the implementation of this resolution and report on progress made in that regard to the Commission at its twenty-ninth session.

8th plenary meeting
18 September 2014

321 (XXVIII). Redesignating the Economic and Social Commission for Western Asia as the “Economic and Social Commission for Arab States”

The Economic and Social Commission for Western Asia,

Referring to Economic and Social Council resolution 1818 (LV) of 9 August 1973, in which the Council established the Economic Commission for Western Asia and set out its terms of reference,

Referring also to the Council resolution 1985/69 of 26 July 1985, in which the Council decided to change the name of the Economic Commission for Western Asia to the “Economic and Social Commission for Western Asia” and to amend its terms of reference to reflect the new name,

Recalling its resolution 302 (XXVII) of 10 May 2012, in which it requested the secretariat to coordinate with the relevant United Nations entities and the League of Arab States the redesignation of the Economic and Social Commission for Western Asia to become the “Economic and Social Commission for Arab States”,

Having considered the recommendations of the Technical Committee at its seventh\(^1\) and eighth\(^2\) meetings concerning the redesignation of the Economic and Social Commission for Western Asia as the Economic and Social Commission for Arab States,

\(^1\) ESCWA, Report of the Technical Committee on its seventh meeting, 18-19 March 2013, E/ESCWA/2012/C.7/8/Report, paras. 6 (a) and (b).

Having taken note of the communications made by the secretariat with the League of Arab States and the United Nations office of Legal Affairs,

Bearing in mind the mandate of the Commission to address economic and social challenges in member States and its unique role in promoting regional integration among them,

1. Recommends the Economic and Social Council:

   (a) To redesignate the Economic and Social Commission for Western Asia as the “Economic and Social Commission for Arab States”;

   (b) To amend the terms of reference of the Commission as set forth in its resolution 1985/69 of 26 July 1985, in line with the new designation;

2. Requests the Executive Secretary to follow up on the implementation of this resolution and submit a report on the progress achieved in that regard to the Commission at its twenty-ninth session.

II. RECOMMENDATIONS

4. Member State representatives participating in the senior officials segment of the ESCWA twenty-eighth session notably discussed the economic and social developments in the Arab region 2013-2014; the outcomes of the Arab High-Level Forum on Sustainable Development; support for the Palestinian people and the International Year of Solidarity with the Palestinian People; the revised draft strategic framework for the biennium 2016-2017; the report of the Executive Secretary on the activities of the Commission; and management issues. The senior officials expressed their gratitude to the United Arab Emirates, which chaired the twenty-seventh session of the Commission, and their wishes for success to Bahrain, which chaired the current session. Discussions concluded with a number of recommendations, as follows:

   (1) Using data from national statistical agencies when preparing ESCWA reports and studies;

   (2) Preparing a report on a draft proposal to establish an Arab development and reconstruction bank for submission to the Arab Economic and Social Development Summit, to be held in Tunis in 2015;

   (3) Developing a unified vision for the Arab region, in collaboration with the League of Arab States, for the post-2015 development agenda; and emphasizing the importance of coordination mechanisms to avoid duplications and bifurcations in reports and initiatives;

   (4) Carrying out a coordinated study between ESCWA and the League of Arab States to assess the progress made in achieving the Millennium Development Goals and methods to continue their implementation under the new development framework; and examining obstacles and challenges to ensure that the Goals meet requirements;

   (5) Undertaking a study on the social effects and the financial and economic implications of terrorism on the Arab region, especially in the light of regional and international recognition of the dangers terrorism poses to sustainable development in the region;

   (6) Recognizing that the work done by subprogramme 7 on emerging and conflict-related issues is sufficient, therefore eliminating the need to establish a specialized intergovernmental committee;
(7) Establishing an Arab trade and economic integration centre, stressing the importance of complete coordination and collaboration with the League of Arab States;

(8) Declining to transform the Consultative Committee on Scientific and Technological Development and Development Innovation into an intergovernmental committee after considering the additional financial demands of this procedure on the United Nations budget;

(9) Redesignating the Technical Committee as the “Executive Committee”, with the power to plan and implement the programme of work, take action on any other matters between ministerial sessions and present resolutions to the United Nations Economic and Social Council;

(10) Not objecting in principle to holding meetings of ESCWA subsidiary bodies as necessary and requesting the secretariat to prepare a paper on the reasons and justifications for holding those meetings annually for consideration by the Executive Committee;

(11) Redesignating the Economic and Social Commission for Western Asia as the “Economic and Social Commission for Arab States”, and requesting the secretariat to implement the resolution on this issue.

III. SESSION THEME: SOCIAL JUSTICE IN THE POLICIES OF ARAB STATES

5. The Commission selected “Social justice in the policies of Arab States” as the theme of its twenty-eighth session, following broad discussions and consultations between the secretariat and members States, given its tight connection to the Arab region’s heritage and culture, its pertinence in view of current events in the region and its importance as a solid foundation for secure, cohesive and open societies. The secretariat prepared a discussion paper, set out in document E/ESCWA/28/8, which it presented to member State representatives at the ministerial segment. The theme was discussed at length in four ministerial dialogues, which covered all dimensions of social justice, under the following four headings: social justice and the new development approach (E/ESCWA/28/8/Panel.1); economic policies supportive of social justice (E/ESCWA/28/8/Panel.2); intergenerational justice and access to natural resources (E/ESCWA/28/8/Panel.3); and social justice: monitoring and measurement (E/ESCWA/28/8/Panel.4).

A. SOCIAL JUSTICE AND THE NEW DEVELOPMENT APPROACH

6. The moderator of the ministerial dialogue on the topic “Social justice and the new development approach”, Mr. Frederico Neto, Director of the ESCWA Social Development Division, opened the debate noting that social justice was built on equity, equality, human rights and participation, and was one of the main issues currently being discussed in international negotiations on a post-2015 development agenda. He added that there were several social, economic, political and cultural obstacles to the implementation of social justice, and it was therefore necessary to tackle the issue through an integrated approach. The present dialogue would address the lack of consensus on the definition of social justice, and on using social protection and political and economic participation as means for its achievement.

7. Mr. Nassir Abdulaziz al-Nasser, High Representative for the Alliance of Civilizations, said that social justice was an old concept which the United Nations had addressed in treaties, declarations and agreements stressing that social justice was achieved by eradicating corruption, ensuring equality before the law, creating job opportunities and providing basic services for all. He added that economic progress and equal opportunities paved the way to achieving social justice and development. Arab peoples aspired to live in peace and enjoy decent jobs, safe surroundings and freedom in practicing their customs and traditions. They wanted their Governments to respect the principles of justice, equity and transparency. The lack of stability, peace and security in the region on the one hand, and weak governance, misuse of resources and lack of political participation, transparency and accountability on the other, undermined development efforts.
8. Ms. Mervat Tallawy, President of the National Council for Women in Egypt, said that social justice entailed equitable income distribution, the absence of discrimination and upholding the rights of vulnerable and marginalized groups. The Arab region did not assign enough importance to social justice because it lacked knowledge of the institutional, legislative and executive means to achieve it. It was important to employ authentic, rather than imported, methods that respected peoples’ specificities and met the needs of all social groups, especially women and young people. Conflicts and wars constantly threatened the region, and recurring Israeli aggressions destroyed what countries had built in times of stability. The principle obstacle to social justice in the Arab region had been the Israeli occupation of Palestine for the past sixty years, which reflected the absence of international justice.

9. Mr. Jihad Azour, former Minister of Finance of Lebanon, said that Arab peoples had revolted, demanding social justice after years of deadlock, but ruling elites had not been prepared to grant it. Some Governments had increased subsidies and created public sector jobs in an attempt at appeasement, instead of undertaking structural reforms. A set of policies was required to tackle short-term issues to achieve political, economic, social and institutional stability, to pave the way for addressing long-term issues. Steps to stimulate growth include strengthening small and medium enterprises as engines of growth, increasing the effectiveness of social policies and reforming social protection systems. He added that it was important to reinstate confidence between States and their citizens and that fiscal policies for achieving social justice should not be limited to economic objectives, but should also cover social objectives. Arab countries must therefore review their tax policies and additional tax revenues should be spent on achieving social justice, increasing wages, salaries and efficient public spending, and on subsidy reform given that current subsidies did not benefit the poor.

10. Mr. John Jost, a political science professor at New York University, said that the basis of social justice was Governments listening to citizens before making decisions. Arab peoples were aware that their demands could not be met immediately, but they needed to be reassured that the authorities were listening to them and were willing to meet their needs eventually. The achievement of social justice faced the challenges of personal interest and resistance to change, since groups that benefited from the status quo preferred to preserve it.

11. Mr. Ishak Diwan, a lecturer at Harvard University, said that the main issue underpinning social justice was the will of the people. It was now easier to understand the attitudes of Arab citizens with the help of data sources, such as the Arab Barometer and Gallup surveys. New data had shown that Arab youth valued strengthening market competition over wealth redistribution and State interference in the economy.

12. In the ensuing discussion, one representative said that social justice was not a political choice but an absolute value linked to faith and law. To achieve it effectively, it was necessary to employ fairness at the legislative, institutional and social levels and in monitoring and evaluation, for justice to be a development tool. Providing equal job opportunities combated unemployment; enhancing transparency increased production; offering effective support achieved justice through wealth redistribution and cemented confidence and social stability; and eradicating corruption strengthened human rights and built trust between Governments and citizens.

13. Another representative said that the dominant State and market economy models had failed. It was therefore necessary to find new models that balanced between the free market and the regulatory role of the State, in accordance with specific standards. Reforming tax policies, correcting wages and improving social services were all interrelated parts of distributive justice. The aim of tax reform should be wealth redistribution not increasing State revenue. Social justice required the absence of discrimination and the right to self-determination, including the right to select development paths and implement fundamental principles such as accountability and participation.

14. Participants agreed that it was vital to refer to successful global experiences and adapt them to meet Arab country specificities; acknowledge the shared responsibility between citizens and State; secure funding without recourse to foreign aid; and assign the will, ambitions and hopes of Arab peoples the importance they deserve.

B. ECONOMIC POLICIES SUPPORTIVE OF SOCIAL JUSTICE

15. Mr. Abdallah al-Dardari, Director of the Economic Development and Globalization Division, chaired the ministerial dialogue on the theme “Economic policies supportive of social justice”. He opened the discussions by indicating that the aim of the current dialogue was to examine the effects of investing or not investing in social justice, and to develop an understanding of economic policies for social justice. He added that rather than concentrating on the lack of consensus regarding the definition of social justice, the concept should be viewed from the perspective of successful experiences.

16. Mr. Grzegorz Kolodko, former Deputy Prime Minister and former Finance Minister of Poland, said that social justice was a means of achieving social cohesion in the European Union. He also spoke about the global outlook on social economy, indicating that social justice was a controversial concept relative to culture and heritage, the definition of which differed between countries. The uprisings had highlighted the absence of social justice in the Arab region in terms of equitable distribution of growth and using tax revenue and financial resources to achieve comprehensive social development. Economic growth raised wealth distribution questions, given that social justice was achieved through equitable wealth distribution between sectors and population groups, according to their needs, and by investing public funds in human capital, education, health care and research and development.

17. Mr. Hazem al-Beblawi, former Prime Minister of Egypt and former ESCWA Executive Secretary, gave a presentation on enshrining social justice in fiscal and economic policies. He tackled the issue of economic optimization and the need to reconcile the many social pillars. He said that social justice was futile in the absence of freedom. Economies could not be confined to aspects of production and efficiency alone, as their most important characteristic was the balance between private and public goods, such as security, justice, stability and education. Achieving social justice required partnerships between individuals, civil society and the State. Individuals should strive to secure their personal interests through entrepreneurship, competition and innovation, thus driving the economy; civil society should encourage cooperation between individuals, specifying the ethical practices that should prevail in a society; and the State should guarantee security, peace, freedom and the rule of law.

18. Mr. Omar Razzaz, Chairman of the Board of Trustees of the King Abdullah II Fund for Development, tackled the issues of social protection and employment and their roles in achieving social justice. Regarding social protection, he said that the Arab region lacked experience in developing a comprehensive system to protect citizens from serious threats. Concerning employment, he said that the region currently suffered from high unemployment rates, especially among young people, giving rise to the phenomenon known as the “generation in waiting”, represented by educated young people of working age waiting for elusive job opportunities, leading to frustration and, ultimately, extremism. He indicated that only 25 per cent of women in the region were employed, compared to a global average of 50 per cent.

19. Mr. Mohammed Saed al-Sadi, Minister of Planning and International Cooperation of Yemen, presented his country’s experience to cast light on the link between politics, development and economics. After five decades of political conflict, the debate continued to focus on rulers rather than on how to rule and drive development. Given limited resources and political considerations, development remained a secondary issue or a voluntary practice carried out by citizens. Today, following the 2011 popular uprisings and the Yemeni National Dialogue Conference that lasted 11 months, Yemenis had agreed on an outcome document with social justice at its heart.

20. In the ensuing discussion, participants affirmed that social justice did not entail abandoning market efficiency and did not weaken economic competition. It should not be limited to developing economic tools, such as a minimum wage, or implementing social policies to protect the rights of workers and vulnerable and marginalized groups. Achieving social justice must begin with the belief that it was fundamental for the development of policies that met the region’s specificities, and country priorities and economic capabilities.

C. INTERGENERATIONAL JUSTICE AND ACCESS TO NATURAL RESOURCES

21. Ms. Nada al-Nashif, Assistant Secretary-General and Regional Director for the Arab States of the International Labour Organization, opened the dialogue on the topic “Intergenerational justice and access to natural resources”. She said that the International Labour Organization assigned great importance to social justice and she commended regional efforts to do the same. She added that the current ministerial dialogue would cover all aspects of social justice related to the use of natural resources.

22. Ms. Carole Nakhle, energy economics lecturer at the University of Surrey, said that 32 million persons in the Arab region did not have access to electricity. She stressed that there was a strong link between economic development and access to energy and expressed her objection to the theory that natural resources should be left untouched for future generations; instead they should be used to strengthen the economy for present and future generations. She warned that the oil sector did not offer sufficient employment opportunities, so it could not be depended on entirely, especially considering that investment projects in the sector were directly affected by fluctuating oil prices.

23. Mr. Shaddad al-Attili, former Palestinian Minster and Chair of the Water Authority, said that natural resources had suffered under the current generation. The industrial revolution had had several environmental consequences, such as global warming, a rise in sea levels, water scarcity and drought. He mentioned the disagreements that had arisen following the Copenhagen Climate Change Conference between those who supported adapting to the effects of climate and those who called for mitigating such effects. He added that it was necessary to implement the Arab Water Strategy and Action Plan developed by Arab water ministers. Hunger, poverty, water scarcity were among the reasons that drove people to demand social justice, including equitable resource distribution. He affirmed that it was important to abide by international laws and regulations and build on the achievements of the international community to develop future strategies.

24. In the ensuing discussion, participants said that it was vital to address the challenges of water resource management in the Arab region, where there were great expanses of desert and infertile land. They recalled several successful experiences from numerous Arab countries that could be referred to, including the sustainable water management strategy in Oman and desalination projects in Gulf Cooperation Council countries. Ensuring intergenerational justice in the management of water resources entailed developing an economic diversification mechanism; diversifying energy and income sources; encouraging responsible consumption; upholding citizens’ rights to access information; ensuring citizen participation in developing strategies and policies; prohibiting monopoly; encouraging competition; and strengthening energy capabilities to invest funds in other areas and create job opportunities to attain social justice. They added that it was necessary to achieve Arab regional integration for countries to benefit from other countries strengths in tackling their own challenges.

D. SOCIAL JUSTICE: MONITORING AND MEASUREMENT

25. Mr. Juraj Riecan, Director of the ESCWA Statistics Division, opened the dialogue with a presentation on the monitoring and measurement of social justice, with reference to a paper prepared by ESCWA on the topic, stressing the importance of monitoring and measurement and of providing statistics to develop indicators for use in policymaking and evaluation.

26. Ms. Martine Durand, Chief Statistician and Director of the Statistics Directorate at the Organization for Economic Cooperation and Development (OECD), presented her organization’s new approach to measuring human well-being and quality of life. She said that indicators no longer simply relied on financial and economic aspects, such as gross domestic product (GDP), income, employment and housing, but also focused on people’s quality of life. Indicators to measure intangible assets, such as the effects of climate change, health, security, well-being and participation in decision-making, had also been developed.

27. Ms. Ola Awad, Minister of the Palestinian National Authority and President of the Palestinian National Bureau of Statistics, said that there was no set definition for social justice, but its measurement required accurate and clear statistical data sets. Official statistics were vital in guiding policymaking to meet specific country needs. She gave the example of Palestine, where all relevant stakeholders participated in setting a large number of statistical monitoring tools and indicators. She added that there were several challenges facing statistical agencies in various areas, including adapting international standards to regional contexts, receiving legal clearance to publish statistics on sensitive issues such as corruption and unemployment, and securing necessary resources.

28. Mr. Shantayanan Devarajan, Chief Economist of the World Bank’s Africa Region, said that it was important to publish statistics on social justice in securing accountability and improving service provision, especially in the public sector. He added that Arab countries faced several challenges related to accountability, which affected service quality in education and health care, despite quantitative targets being met.

29. In the ensuing discussion, participants said that the Arab region faced similar challenges to other regions in applying certain OECD economic indicators, such as those measuring social relations and mental health. The issue of social justice and its measurement was not limited to developing countries; marginalized groups in developed countries, such as migrants and ethnic minorities, suffered from poor education and health-care services.

IV. ISSUES FOR CONSIDERATION AND DISCUSSION

A. IMPORTANT ISSUES AND DEVELOPMENTS

30. At the senior officials segment, several important issues and developments in the Arab region were considered and discussed, with reference to the work and monitoring carried out by ESCWA prior to the twenty-eighth session. Participants discussed the economic and social developments in the Arab region 2013-2014; the outcomes of the Arab High-Level Forum on Sustainable Development; support for the Palestinian people; and the revised draft strategic framework for the biennium 2016-2017.

1. Survey of economic and social developments in the Arab region

31. The representative of the secretariat gave a presentation to the senior officials on a survey of economic and social developments in the Arab region 2013-2014, prepared annually by ESCWA, covering the following four topics: the global economy and its effects on the Arab economy; important developments in the Arab economy and the challenges faced by Arab countries, surveyed in accordance with their economic and social specificities; a fundamental issue that changes every year: this year it was the funding gap in the Arab region; and the situation of women in terms of the labour market and political participation in the Arab region.

32. The representatives of Egypt, Iraq, Kuwait, Morocco, Oman, Saudi Arabia, the Sudan, the United Arab Emirates and Yemen made pertinent comments on the presentation.

33. Representatives commended the survey and its precise results, which examined Arab countries in detail by grouping them according to their levels of development, income and economic diversification. Comments focussed on tackling the obstacles hampering the implementation of the Greater Arab Free Trade Area (GAFTA) through continued cooperation between ESCWA and the League of Arab States, especially regarding its detailed operational rules, so as to strengthen trade ties and increase integration among Arab countries.
34. Representatives inquired about the feasibility of establishing an Arab bank under the proposed solutions for bridging the funding gap, in view of the significant regional challenges. They questioned whether such a project would succeed and how the necessary resources would be secured. They suggested developing a clear scenario for the proposed bank’s working mechanism, voting rights and loan approvals and conditions.

35. Representatives focused on the importance of evenly balancing between social and economic aspects in the survey, especially given the need to take into account the cost of terrorism on development and other achievements in the region, and its negative effects on vital social sectors such as education and health.

36. Representatives highlighted growth disparities and the lack of equitable income distribution, which were reasons behind the uprisings. They said that the absence of justice increased social tension because it broadened the funding gap and they raised questions on how to allocate resources within the region to bridge that gap.

37. In response to comments, the representative of the secretariat said that the survey was a periodic survey of the economy and its relevant factors, which also addressed issues such as unemployment, poverty, women’s participation, gender equality and the environment. It should be read with reference to other ESCWA reports, including the Arab Integration Report that analysed the successes and shortfalls of integration, which continued to attract attention and investment from other regions, including the European Union, which had achieved economic unity.

38. With regard to trade integration, ESCWA was collaborating with the League of Arab States on several issues, notably assessing GAFTA outcomes and achievements, especially non-tariff barriers that could further liberalize trade following the elimination of custom restrictions. He expressed his hope that the broad and close partnership with the League of Arab States would result in scenarios for submission to the next Arab Economic and Social Development Summit.

39. Concerning an Arab development bank, the representative of the secretariat noted the efforts of development funds in the Arab region, and stressed the urgent need for effective, fast and low-cost funding mechanisms that exceeded the capacity of all funds combined. The Arab region was the only region without a development bank working alongside various funds and multilateral organizations. He expressed her willingness to prepare a detailed study on the proposal.

40. Regarding the funding gap, the representative of the secretariat noted that some countries spent double the amount on energy subsidies and the security sector than on education and health combined, although richer population groups benefitted the most from such subsidies.

41. In relation to the effects of crises on development, ESCWA had published studies on the effects of the Libyan crisis on the Tunisian economy; the impact of the ongoing crisis in Iraq on the economies of neighbouring countries; the effects on the conflict in the Syrian Arab Republic on Jordan and Lebanon; and the consequences of the Israeli aggression on Gaza and the Arab region. Examining the wider effects of crises gave a clearer picture of the development links between Arab countries and the impact of development fluctuations on poverty, unemployment, balance of payments and government budgets.

2. Outcomes of the Arab High-Level Forum on Sustainable Development

42. The representative of the secretariat, referring to document E/ESCWA/SDPD/2014/WG.1/6/Report, reviewed the outcomes of the Arab High-Level Forum on Sustainable Development, organized by ESCWA in collaboration with the League of Arab States and the United Nations Environment Programme. The aim of the Forum was to follow-up on the outcomes of the United Nations Conference on Sustainable Development (Rio+20).
43. The Forum was the result of a series of consultations on what Arab countries wanted to gain from Rio+20. The Forum focused on the following four topics: progress made in achieving the Millennium Development Goals; the regional position on the proposed sustainable development goals; the Arab Strategic Framework for Sustainable Development 2015-2025; and the Forum’s structure and work mechanism for its future sessions. It outcomes had been presented to all Arab countries and to the councils of Arab social affairs ministers and the Arab ministers responsible for the environment.

44. The Forum had proposed 11 interlinked sustainable development goals, focusing on poverty; unemployment; infrastructure; water and energy; food security; provision of goods, services and public utilities; balanced development; and decent housing.

45. Those goals cut across the proposed 17 global sustainable development goals. The Forum was an important mechanism for encouraging an integrated approach to the economic, social and environmental dimensions of development and generating the political momentum for decision-making, and a communication mechanism between experts, civil society and all sustainable development stakeholders.

46. In the ensuing discussion, representative of the Sudan, Tunisia, Yemen and the League of Arab States commented on the presentation.

47. The representative of the secretariat said that the League of Arab States and ESCWA were jointly organizing a conference to develop goals according to the priority outcomes of the first Arab High-Level Forum on Sustainable Development, with the participation of the technical secretariats of the ministries of environment, water and housing.

48. Representatives said that it was important to develop a unified vision for the Arab region when preparing the post-2015 development agenda, and that all Arab countries should participate in the negotiations to ensure that the region had a strong and unified position, allowing it to place its priorities at the heart of the final outcome. They added that coordination mechanisms were vital to avoid duplication and overlaps in reports and initiatives. Concerning agreement on the final development goals at the international level, the Arab region must uphold its priorities, including peace, institution-building and science and technology.

3. Support for the Palestinian people

49. The representative of the secretariat reviewed the economic and social situation in Palestine, referring to document E/ESCWA/28/4. He said that the situation in Palestine was deteriorating as a result of the ongoing Israeli occupation, especially the recurring offensives on Gaza and the great human and material losses they entailed, requiring large amounts of resources to compensate and rebuild, which affected the economic and social situation in the whole region.

50. ESCWA had carried out normative and technical activities to support the Palestinian people and to prepare for the International Year of Solidarity with the Palestinian People, including launching a media campaign to disseminate daily information on Palestine for a period of 181 days in commemoration of the General Assembly resolution that carried the same number; organizing initiatives to support Palestinians in Lebanon; and celebrating the International Year of Solidarity with the Palestinian People to raise awareness of the violations they suffered, galvanize regional and international support for the Palestinian Cause and assist the Palestinian people in regaining their rights.

51. He added that ESCWA was preparing a report documenting Israeli violations of the Fourth Geneva Convention relative to the Protection of Civilian Persons in Time of War.

52. The representatives of Iraq, Jordan, Kuwait, Morocco, Oman, the Sudan, Tunisia and Yemen commented on the presentation
53. Representatives said that the Palestinian Cause affected the Arab region as a whole. More importance should be given to the issue, granting it broader and more integrated institutional and social support. They also requested that the annual report prepared by ESCWA, in collaboration with other United Nations entities, on the repercussions of the Israeli occupation on the living conditions of the Palestinian people in the Occupied Palestinian Territory, be presented at ESCWA ministerial sessions, the General Assembly and the Economic and Social Council to integrate practical recommendations that had international support.

54. Representatives added that special attention should be given to documenting violations and supporting the Palestinian people and their institutions in following up their case through international legal avenues.

B. REVISED DRAFT STRATEGIC FRAMEWORK FOR THE BIENNIAL 2016-2017
(Agenda item 8)

55. The representative of the secretariat gave a presentation on the following three strategic objectives and priority areas for 2016-2017: inclusive development, regional integration, and good governance and resilience. He said that the secretariat had taken into account comments from member States when preparing the draft strategic framework and that ESCWA was committed to achieving priority objectives for the Arab region. He added that it was important to follow up ESCWA work by collecting data and statistics and conducting evaluations that assisted in developing policies.

56. Representatives commended the secretariat’s efforts in preparing the draft strategic framework for the biennium 2016-2017 and incorporating comments from member States.

57. They raised several issues, including flexibility in implementing the strategic objectives given that not all objectives and their priority areas applied to all subprogrammes. For example, they said that resilience to crises and occupation, under the good governance pillar, did not apply to subprogramme 7, and might only apply to institutional capacity-building under other subprogrammes. They requested clarification on the role that ESCWA could play in developing agreements and strategies between member States under the regional integration objective. They said that regional integration accomplishments could not be measured by the number of bilateral and multilateral agreements on the issue. Moreover, accomplishments in the advancement of women could not be measured by the number of regional networks developed for that purpose. State participation in ESCWA activities and ESCWA participation in international forums was not a sufficient measure of achievements; the positive effects of activities was what truly reflected expected accomplishments. Representatives stressed the need to broaden achievement indicators so that they not only measured quantity, but also quality and the effects of services provided. One representative said that “challenges of occupation” should be added to the expected accomplishments of subprogramme 7.

58. Another representative requested that a study on the social effects and financial and economic repercussions of terrorism on the region be undertaken, especially in view of the regional and international acknowledgement of the threats from terrorism that the Arab region was facing.

59. Representatives said that it was important to focus on the knowledge society and knowledge-based economy, given that those two concepts were applicable to all sectors. The stressed the need to create job opportunities for young people and prepare periodical reports on pertinent issues, such as competitiveness, integration, productivity and economic diversification, and requested that ESCWA increase its technical support capabilities.

60. In response to a representative’s suggestion to develop a subprogramme for Arab countries undergoing transition, other representatives said that it was impossible to do so, given the volatile situation in those countries and the varied levels of transition they had achieved. They proposed the development of an initiative to build those countries’ institutional capacities and assist them in completing their political and social transitions. Those countries could also submit a request to ESCWA for the development of programmes that met their specific needs.
61. One representative indicated that the draft strategic framework for the biennium 2016-2017 would be affected by the impending deadline for the Millennium Development Goals and the launch of the post-2015 development agenda and sustainable development goals. Another representative said that ESCWA not only offered regional representation, but also an Arab representation within the United Nations.

62. One representative said that the pertinent issue of the family was not mentioned in the draft strategic framework, and stressed the need to develop planning frameworks and programmes and hold workshops to build planning capacities.

63. The representative of the Arab Institute for Training and Research in Statistics, participating as an observer, said that it was important to assign civil society the importance it deserved in the draft strategic framework, given its vital role in many areas, including health care, education, culture, and women and youth issues. He indicated the absence of a database on civil society organizations that acted as mediators between government bodies and civilians in terms of awareness-raising, education, support, democratic transition, equality and the achievement of desired goals and the national and international levels. He suggested that the programmes set out in the draft strategic framework should include building the capacities of civil society organizations in view of their important social and economic roles and the numerous job opportunities they offer.

64. In response to comments on the draft strategic framework, the representative of the secretariat thanked the representatives for their valued interventions and said that they would be taken into consideration in the preparation of the work programme for the biennium 2016-2017, without changing the general direction of the Strategic Framework.

C. REPORT OF THE EXECUTIVE SECRETARY ON THE ACTIVITIES OF THE COMMISSION
   (Agenda item 9)

1. Financial status of the Commission

65. The representative of the secretariat gave a presentation on the financial status of the Commission, with reference to document E/ESCWA/28/6(Part I), which covered items under the regular budget, including economic and social development in Western Asia; the regular programme of technical cooperation; the Development Account; and security and safety. It also covered extrabudgetary resources. He said that programmes on statistics, the advancement of women and conflict mitigation and development had received additional budgetary resources. He outlined the secretariat’s achievements in reducing administrative expenditures and reviewed the utilization of regular budget and extrabudgetary resources and expenditures to support member States. He added that there had been a drop in extrabudgetary resources for the biennium 2012-2013 compared to the previous biennium and highlighted that ESCWA had access to fewer extrabudgetary resources than the other regional commissions.

66. The representative of Saudi Arabia said that it was important to increase resources allocated to technical assistance services for member States.

2. Programme performance for the biennium 2012-2013

67. The representative of the secretariat gave a presentation on the programme performance for the biennium 2012-2013, referring to document E/ESCWA/28/6(Part II). He said that ESCWA had achieved many objectives related to enhancing economic integration, implementing the Millennium Development Goals and supporting sustainable development, especially with regard to implementing the outcomes of Rio+20, participating in the preparation of the post-2015 development agenda and sustainable development goals, and the advancement of women. He outlined the accomplishments and lessons learned for each of the seven subprogrammes. He clarified that the secretariat, in the programme performance report, had followed a result-based evaluation approach, whereby performance indicators were set, data were systematically collected, lessons were drawn and obstacles and challenges were identified and taken into account when developing plans and programmes for the upcoming periods.

68. In the ensuing discussion, one representative suggested that it was not sufficient to review challenges and lessons learned; solutions should also be proposed to overcome obstacles.

69. In response to a request for clarification by one representative on the type of technical support provided by ESCWA, the representative of the secretariat referred to the Communication and Information Unit established as a result of an agreement signed between ESCWA and Saudi Arabia.

3. Technical cooperation and regional advisory services

70. The representative of the secretariat gave a presentation on the technical cooperation activities conducted by ESCWA, funded by the regular programme of technical cooperation, the United Nations Development Account and extrabudgetary resources. Services provided included policy advice, technical support, capacity-building and field projects, in accordance with member States’ needs to support their initiatives and provide solutions on the basis of country specificities. He outlined the accomplishments of the technical cooperation programme and projects financed through the Development Fund and extrabudgetary resources. Such services focused on evaluating the effects of climate change on water resources and its social and economic impact in the Arab region; the International Comparison Programme for Western Asia, building the capacities of policymakers in the region to develop policies and national workplans for young people; and strengthening negotiating positions on bilateral investment treaties and information and communication technology policies.

71. The representative of the secretariat said that 2013 had seen an increase in demand for technical cooperation and advisory services. The number of applications received by the secretariat to date for 2014 had already surpassed the number for 2013. He added that the secretariat would strive, in collaboration with relevant United Nations entities, to increase resources allocated to that area, and called for an increase in member State contributions to allow ESCWA to meet increasing member State needs. He said that the added value of ESCWA lies in its technical expertise.

72. To clarify the relationship between technical cooperation activities and the ESCWA mandate, the representative of the secretariat said that activities implemented in that regard, such as the Syrian national dialogue initiative, were funded using extrabudgetary resources, covering post-conflict development, economic and social policies. The representative of Bahrain, in his capacity as Chair of the senior officials segment, said that it was member States’ prerogative to decide whether to launch a national dialogue in collaboration with ESCWA. The representative of the secretariat added that such dialogues would be considered following clear applications from member States, outlining their desire to benefit from ESCWA expertise in various areas.

4. Implementation of the resolutions adopted by the Commission at its twenty-seventh session

73. The directors of the ESCWA substantive divisions gave a presentation summarizing ESCWA activities related to the resolutions adopted by the Commission at its twenty-seventh session, held in Beirut, from 7 to 10 May 2012. Member State representatives took note of the completed activities and those that were still in progress.

5. Reports of the subsidiary bodies on their sessions

74. The reports of the seven ESCWA subsidiary bodies on their sessions, held between the twenty-seventh and twenty-eighth ESCWA sessions, were reviewed, as well as the reports of the Technical Committee on its sessions held over the same period. The reports contained recommendations, research and discussion topics and information on the organization of those sessions, lists of participants and lists of documents. The representative of the secretariat highlighted three recommendations on the frequency of the sessions of the Committee on Water Resources, the Committee on Energy and the Statistics Committee, held annually.

75. Concerning those recommendations, participants said that they have no objection in principle to sessions of some subsidiary bodies being held as necessary. However, they requested that the secretariat prepare a paper setting out the reasons for holding those sessions annually, for consideration at the sessions of the Executive Committee.

76. With regard to the report on the eighth session of the Technical Committee on Liberalization of Foreign Trade, Economic Globalization and Financing for Development, the representative of Tunisia presented several proposals on effecting the Committee’s activities, including the following: coordinating funding with development needs and priorities in the Arab region; facilitating trade, developing logistical services and reducing transport costs; benefiting from Arab production chains to enter new markets, improve quality, and develop the production of advanced technology goods rather than labour-intensive projects, given that low-cost labour is no longer the main driver of competitiveness; offering technical support to member States to strengthen institutional and legislative frameworks for trade, competitiveness, customs and logistical services; achieving Arab trade and economic integration set out in agreements under the League of Arab States and the programmes and projects approved by the Arab economic and social development summits, held in 2009, 2011 and 2013.

77. The representative of Egypt requested clarification of paragraph (h) of a recommendation made to the secretariat, contained in the report of the ninth session of the Committee on Social Development. She said that the final part of the paragraph was unclear and confusing.

78. The Chair of the session announced the adoption of all the following subsidiary body reports, taking into account the proposed amendments:

- Report of the tenth session of the Statistics Committee (E/ESCWA/SD/2012/IG.1/10/Report);
- Report of the ninth session of the Committee on Energy (E/ESCWA/SDPD/2013/IG.2/7/Report);
- Report of the ninth session of the Committee on Social Development (E/ESCWA/SDD/2013/IG.1/6/Report);
- Report of the sixth session of the Committee on Women (E/ESCWA/ECW/2013/IG.1/7/Report);
- Report of the seventh meeting of the Technical Committee (E/ESCWA/2012/C.7/8/Report);
- Report of the tenth session of the Committee on Water Resources (E/ESCWA/SDPD/2013/IG.1/8/Report);
- Report of the thirteenth session of the Committee on Transport (E/ESCWA/EDGD/2012/IG.1/8/Report);
- Report of the fourteenth session of the Committee on Transport (E/ESCWA/EDGD/2013/IG.1/7/Report);
- Report of the eighth session of the Technical Committee on Liberalization of Foreign Trade, Economic Globalization and Financing for Development (E/ESCWA/EDGD/2013/IG.2/10/Report);
6. Activities of the ESCWA Technology Centre for the period 2011-2013

79. The representative of the secretariat gave a presentation on the activities of the Technology Centre for the period 2011-2013, referring to document E/ESCWA/28/6(Part VI). He gave an overview of Technology Centre studies, databases, work networks, meetings, workshops and advisory services. He said that the centre aimed to strengthen member States’ capacities to improve national and administrative systems; ensure technology development, transfer, adaptation and application; and identify suitable technology for the region, facilitate its development and improve the legal and commercial frameworks for its transfer. He presented a list of current financial commitments to the Centre and urged all member States to contribute to its funding, to enhance its activities covering numerous member States. He also reviewed the list of nominations sent for approval by member States for membership of its board of directors for the period 2014-2017.

80. One representative commended the Centre’s achievements, although it was newly established and was operating with limited human resources. Following comments on nominations and membership, member State representatives adopted the list of nominations for membership of the Centre, taking into account suggested amendments and adding nominees from member States not included in the list.

D. MANAGEMENT ISSUES
   (Agenda item 10)

81. The Commission considered document E/ESCWA/28/7, containing the following six sections:

   1. Evaluation of the work of the Commission

82. The representative of the secretariat reviewed the project to evaluate the work of the Commission, its programmes and activities and its intergovernmental mechanisms. She said that the main aim of the project was to improve performance through planning and self-evaluation and cement the principle of accountability through an independent and objective evaluation process, following standards applied by other international organizations and regional commissions.

83. The Commission had benefitted from the experiences of other commissions and entities. It had reviewed the evaluation process and adopted a new approach, maintaining member States’ role in directing and commenting on the process, given the importance of that joint approach to performance improvement and effective resource allocation.

84. The representatives of Egypt, Oman, Saudi Arabia, Tunis and Yemen commented on the issue.

85. Representatives affirmed the importance of the evaluation process in improving performance and resource allocation, in accordance with member States’ needs, aims and priorities.

86. They also stressed the importance of neutral and independent evaluation. They said that, whether conducted internally or externally, evaluation processes must be as neutral, objective and independent as possible, which was best achieved when the process was carried out by a section other than the one undertaking the planning, to ensure objective outcomes that improved the evaluation process.

87. Representatives said that it was necessary to link evaluation processes to stakeholder needs and strengthen coordination between ESCWA and member States to correct any disagreements that could negatively affect cooperation and transparency.

88. Representatives requested that member States be informed about how evaluation processes were conducted at other regional commissions, coordinate with bodies mandated to appoint focal points, and benefit from the experiences of other regional commissions in terms of performance evaluations, especially in dealing with the outcomes of evaluations conducted by the Office of Internal Oversight Services.
89. They discussed the role ESCWA played in Arab integration and its relationship to ESCWA performance. They supported the self-evaluation process, focusing on quality rather than the number of evaluation arrangements.

90. The representative of the secretariat clarified that the aim of independent evaluations was to separate evaluation from planning. Member States played a fundamental role in evaluation processes, given that they were conducted on the basis of their comments and the outcomes were submitted to them to enable them to direct planning by presenting priorities and observations on performance in all work areas.

2. Proposed amendments to the programme of work for the biennium 2014-2015

91. Regarding the proposed amendments to the programme of work for the biennium 2014-2015, the representative of the secretariat gave a brief presentation on the proposed amendments and their justifications, which did not surpass 10 per cent of the work programme. He said that the secretariat had suggested them in compliance with its mandate and terms of reference, accorded to it by member States under the adopted Strategic Framework and in view of regional and international developments that had altered priorities.

92. The issue was discussed at length, and several comments were made by the representatives of Egypt, Kuwait, Oman, Saudi Arabia, the Sudan and the United Arab Emirates.

93. Although representatives agreed that flexibility in planning was vital, they said that strong justifications were needed to amend the work programme following its approval. The flexibility margin should remain within the set limits of the mandate granted to ESCWA by member States and activities and programmes should not be replaced by others without good reason.

3. Proposed terms of reference of the intergovernmental committee on emerging issues and development under crisis

94. The representative of the secretariat reviewed the reasons for establishing an intergovernmental committee on emerging issues and development under crisis, referring to document E/ESCWA/28/7(Part V), prepared pursuant to ESCWA resolutions 292 (XXVI) and 296 (XXVI). He said that the committee’s mandate would include supporting member States’ efforts in institutional and administrative capacity-building and development under crisis; monitoring the effects of emerging issues, crises and the Israeli occupation of Palestine and other Arab territories on social and economic development in the region; presenting the latest key initiatives on governance to benefit from them and encourage the exchange of experience and expertise between member States and strengthen cooperation; review progress made, as a result of ESCWA activities, in the areas of governance, emerging issues and development under crisis and foreign occupation; and following international and regional conferences, ensuring member State participation and coordinating efforts to implement resulting decisions and recommendations.

95. In the ensuing discussion, observations were made by the representatives of Egypt, Morocco, Tunisia, the United Arab Emirates and Yemen.

96. Following lengthy discussions, representatives recommended that the proposal not be submitted pending further clarification. They agreed that it was not necessary to establish an intergovernmental committee on emerging issues and development under crisis given that the work carried out on the issue by ESCWA subprogramme 7 was currently sufficient.

4. Proposal for the establishment of an Arab trade and economic integration centre

97. The representative of the secretariat presented a proposal for the establishment of an Arab trade and economic integration centre, with reference to document E/ESCWA/28/7(Part IV), aimed at strengthening economic and commercial cooperation and coordination among Arab countries with specific characteristics and varying development levels; and offering integration opportunities in our globalized world and facilitating the full implementation of GAFTA, the Arab Customs Union, within the context of negotiations between the League of Arab States, the World Trade Organization and the European union on liberalizing trade.

98. The centre would develop economic models and unified tariff scenarios; coordinate macroeconomic policies for the Arab Customs Union; and prepare studies on cross-border infrastructure to facilitate the flow of goods and services between Arab countries.

99. The Regional Integration Section of the Economic Development and Globalization Division would be at the heart of the centre, headed by the ESCWA Executive Secretary under the management of a director. ESCWA intergovernmental committees would monitor its work. He stressed that the establishment of the centre would not require additional human and financial resources and its projects would be funded using extrabudgetary sources.

100. In the ensuing discussion, the representatives of Egypt, Iraq, Kuwait, Morocco, Oman, Saudi Arabia, the Sudan, Tunisia, the United Arab Emirates and Yemen made comments, focusing on the importance of coordination with the league of Arab States to avoid duplication and ensure the efficiency of efforts. Representatives requested clarification on the reasons for transforming the Regional Integration Section into a centre and on the feasibility of achieving its desired goals.

101. In response to comments, the representative of the secretariat said that ESCWA was continuously collaborating with the Economic and Social Council of the League of Arab States, which had requested ESCWA technical support for the League’s role in trade liberalization talks. The aim of transforming the Regional Integration Section into a centre was to increase flexibility so as to meet member States’ needs more swiftly. Desired goals were being achieved as a result of several technical studies in various areas related to trade and of the funding received from the Swedish International Development Cooperation Agency, totalling 1 million Euros, to monitor the effects of service liberalization on the Arab economy.

5. Proposal for the establishment of an intergovernmental committee on information and communications technology for development

102. The representative of the secretariat gave a presentation on the proposal for the establishment of an intergovernmental committee on information and communication technology for development, referring to E/ESCWA/28/7(Part III), to replace the Consultative Committee on Scientific and Technological Development and Development Innovation and continue the work of the Technology for Development Division. He said that the aim was to provide member States with opportunities to include their priorities in the ESCWA programme of work for presentation at international forums, especially sessions of the Commission on Science and Technology for Development, the World Summit on the Information Society and the Internet Governance Forum. Given the importance of technology for innovation, development and the swift advance of the knowledge society concept, including the information society, the information economy and the peaceful uses of outer space, it had been necessary to restructure the Information and Communication Technology Division, redesignating it as the Technology for Development Division.

103. In the ensuing discussion, the representatives of Iraq, Oman, Saudi Arabia, Tunisia, the United Arab Emirates and Yemen made comments. They requested clarification on the financial implications of establishing the committee, the frequency of its sessions and its relationship with the ESCWA Technology Centre established in 2011.

104. In response to comments, the representative of the secretariat said that transforming the Consultative Committee into an intergovernmental committee would not require great amounts of funding. It would meet every two years. Regarding its relationship with the Technology Centre, the committee would cover policy issues, good practices and international developments in technology and innovation, whereas the Centre was concerned with coordinating work between Arab countries given its operational and networking roles to broaden regional cooperation.
6. Proposed amendments to the Terms of Reference and Rules of Procedure of the Economic and Social Commission for Western Asia

105. Under this sub-item, representatives discussed two proposals. The first on redesignating the Commission as the “Economic and Social Commission for Arab States” and the second on redesignating the Technical Committee as the “Executive Committee” and amending its terms of reference. Representatives unanimously supported both proposals. They said that the Commission’s name should reflect that its work and mandate covered all Arab countries. Transforming the Technical Committee into an executive committee was necessary to amend its Terms of Reference to allow it to play a bigger role in directing and coordinating ESCWA activities and to take decisions in the periods between ministerial sessions.

V. ADOPTION OF THE REPORT OF THE TWENTY-EIGHTH SESSION OF THE COMMISSION

106. The Commission, at its closing plenary session, held on 18 September 2014, adopted the Tunis Declaration and draft resolutions and the recommendations from the senior officials segment, which will be sent to member States in the final report. The secretariat, prior to adopting the draft resolutions, read a statement from the Office of Programme Planning, Budget and Accounts of the United Nations Secretariat on the estimated costs of implementing the resolutions. Rule 24 of the ESCWA Rules of procedure states that the Executive Secretary shall prepare an estimate of the cost of implementing any proposal entailing expenditure from United Nations funds. The secretariat said that the following resolutions would require expenditure from United Nations Funds:

(a) Support for the Palestinian people, estimated at $428,600;
(b) Establishing an intergovernmental committee, estimated at $21,500;
(c) The Arab Forum on Sustainable Development, estimate at $751,600.

VI. ORGANIZATION OF WORK

A. DATE AND VENUE

107. The Economic and Social Commission for Western Asia held its twenty-eighth session in Tunis, from 15 to 18 September 2014. It convened eight plenary meetings, at which it discussed its agenda items covering issues of concern to member States.

108. A framework agreement was signed between the Commission and the Government of Tunisia, under which ESCWA shall provide technical services to support the Tunisian national development plan. Those services will focus on priorities identified by the Government, including developing an investment map for the least developed regions and establishing an economic modelling unit to determine the effects of public policies on employment and growth.

109. A side event was held to give an overview of an ESCWA report entitled “The Arab Middle Class: A Force for Change”, which offers two definitions of the middle class. The first definition is economic on the basis of national poverty lines and consumption choices. The second is sociological, referring to education and employment. It also includes a parameter on personal perceptions regarding social group affiliation. The report aims to monitor key developments related to the size and structure of the middle class.

B. CONSIDERATION OF REQUESTS BY STATES MEMBERS OF THE UNITED NATIONS AND/OR ITS SPECIALIZED AGENCIES THAT ARE NOT MEMBERS OF ESCWA TO PARTICIPATE AS OBSERVERS IN THE TWENTY-EIGHTH SESSION OF THE COMMISSION

(Agenda item 4)

110. Rule 63 of the ESCWA Rules of procedure states that the Commission may invite any Member of the United Nations or of a specialized agency that is not a member of the Commission to participate in its deliberations on any matter which the Commission considers to be of particular concern to that State. A State thus invited shall not have the right to vote, but may submit proposals which may be put to the vote at the request of any member of the Commission.

111. In accordance with that rule, the secretariat, at the twenty-eighth ESCWA session, reviewed requests by member States and took the necessary decisions. Finland; various United Nations programmes and agencies; the secretariat of the League of Arab States; the Saudi Fund for Development; the secretariat of the Gulf Cooperation Council (GCC), the Organization of Arab Petroleum Exporting Countries (OAPEC); the Organization of Islamic Cooperation; the Federation of GCC Chambers; the International Center for Agricultural Research in the Dry Areas; the Arab Institute for Training and Research in Statistics; the Arab Organization for Agricultural Development; the Gulf Organization for Industrial Consulting; the Arab Towns Organization; the Higher Council for Science and Technology; and non-governmental organizations from ESCWA member States and non-member States, accredited by the United Nations Economic and Social Council, participated as observers in the twenty-eighth ESCWA session.

112. The representative of Finland made a brief statement, highlighting the importance of economic and social policy planning, cemented in the ESCWA mandate, in handling cross-cutting challenges, with reference to his country’s experiences in the area. He expressed his country’s desire to cooperate with ESCWA to support equitable development and Arab prosperity.

C. OPENING OF THE SESSION

113. The session was opened in two stages. The senior officials segment was opened on the morning of Monday, 15 September 2014. The ministerial segment was opened on the morning of Wednesday, 17 September 2014.

1. Senior officials segment

114. At the opening of the senior officials segment, the representative of the United Arab Emirates, Mr. Mohamed Saleh Shelwah, Advisor to the Minister of the Economy of the United Arab Emirates and Chair of the senior officials segment of the twenty-seventh ESCWA session, gave a statement commending the efforts of the ESCWA secretariat that positively affected member States in all areas. He noted the fruitful cooperation between the Session Bureau and the secretariat in implementing programmes and realizing various objectives, especially considering the bleak conditions currently facing the Arab region.

115. Mr. Nadim Khouri, ESCWA Deputy Executive Secretary, made a statement stressing the importance of participating in the current session during an unprecedented and fateful period in the region’s history. He said that concerted efforts were necessary to drive economic and social development in the Arab region and achieve the aspirations of Arab countries and their peoples’ ambitions for freedom, dignity and justice, using its human and natural resources, knowledge and rich cultural heritage.

2. Ministerial segment

116. Mr. Salem Issa Alghattam Alzaabi, United Arab Emirates Ambassador to Tunisia, representing the Chair of the ministerial segment of the twenty-seventh ESCWA session, opened the ministerial segment with an address in which he highlighted ESCWA support for Arab countries in facing numerous challenges, coordinating efforts and strengthening cooperation to stimulate development. He reviewed the objectives realized since the last session, including the membership of Libya, Morocco and Tunisia that strengthened ESCWA representation and its role as a regional platform for exchanging ideas and experiences, and its standing as a United Nations presence in the Arab region. He said that ESCWA continued to implement its work programme despite difficult conditions and was able to secure additional extrabudgetary resources used to increase its support to member States. He commended the collaboration between ESCWA and the League of Arab States in implementing the outcomes of Rio+20 and presenting Arab priorities during negotiations.
on the post-2015 development agenda. He also praised ESCWA efforts to ensure the advancement of women and gender equality, enshrined in the Kuwait Declaration on Combating Violence against Women, resulting from the sixth session of the Committee on Women.

117. Mr. Nadim Khouri, ESCWA Deputy Executive Secretary, gave a statement following the message from the United Nations Secretary-General, Mr. Ban Ki-moon. He said that the demands of Arab citizens for a just society founded on human rights had resonated throughout the region. Nevertheless, the Arab region, like many other parts of the world, faced several challenges, including poverty, geographical disparities, unemployment, exclusion and conflicts that made social justice harder to attain. The ESCWA session offered a valuable opportunity to exchange views and unify positions. Discussions and activities organized by ESCWA were vital to developing a common Arab stance, on the basis of national priorities, for consideration during negotiations for a post-2015 development agenda.

118. Mr. Ghanim bin Fadhul al-Buanain, Minister of State for Foreign Affairs of Bahrain, made a statement, affirming that social justice was a pertinent theme for the session. He said that the main challenges facing the Arab region, which also had economic repercussions, were high unemployment and poverty rates, food insecurity, the absence of a healthy and safe environment, excessive consumption of natural resources, population increases, a lack of innovation and the absence of a knowledge economy. He added that those challenges required a review of development policies and the adoption of a development approach founded on studies and inclusive and comprehensive plans to achieve sustainable development; and the participation of all population groups in the decision-making process. Small and medium sized enterprises played an important role in strengthening growth and investment, creating job opportunities for young people, combating poverty and raising living standards. He presented the Bahrain Economic Vision 2030 aimed at identifying a clear approach for the development of the Bahraini economy, and the country’s national reform initiatives that established the Tamkeen (empowerment) organization tasked with developing the private sector as the key driver of economic growth.

119. Ms. Rima Khalaf, Under-Secretary-General of the United Nations and Executive Secretary of ESCWA, gave a statement thanking the Government and people of Tunisia for hosting the session. She commended member State participation in the session despite current difficulties, which reflected Arab commitment to supporting ESCWA. She said that social justice was a pertinent theme for the session, given that it was a value cemented in Arab and Islamic culture, philosophy and civilian demands, and the main objective of State policies.

120. Mr. Mongi Hamdi, Minister of Foreign Affairs of Tunisia, made a statement outlining the reasons behind growing income disparities, rising poverty, the lack of equal opportunities and equality and exclusion, resulting in a lack of justice and equity in the Arab region. He said that joint efforts should be made to face increasing security and economic challenges, by reviewing economic and social plans to ensure that they were aimed at achieving social justice to meet the needs and aspirations of Arab peoples. Arab experts should propose structural reforms to organize social protection and social assistance programmes for marginalized groups; support food, energy and housing resources; and secure necessary funding. He also praised the Arab Integration Report, launched by ESCWA in February 2014. He added that regional and international rapprochement and coordinated efforts were vital in view of the threats posed by terrorism, extremism and organized crime. He expressed his confidence that the Tunis Declaration on Social Justice in the Arab Region, resulting from the current session, would be tantamount to a roadmap for Arab countries.

D. PARTICIPANTS

121. The session was attended by representatives of 15 ESCWA member States. It was also attended by Finland as an observer. Other observers included representatives of United Nations programmes, agencies and institutions; international and non-governmental organizations; other organizations; and a number of experts. The list of participants is contained in annex I to the present report.
