7. Notes that, while foreign direct investment is a major source of financing for development, the flow of such funds to developing countries and countries with economies in transition has fallen rapidly during the crisis and remains uneven, and in this regard calls upon developed countries to continue to devise source-country measures to encourage and facilitate the flow of foreign direct investment, inter alia, through the provision of export credits and other lending instruments, risk guarantees and business development services calls upon developing countries and effectiveness and quality of aid based on the fundamental principles of national ownership, alignment, harmonization, managing for results and mutual development assistance to developing countries by 2015 and to reach a level of at least 0.5 per cent of gross national product for official development assistance by should not burden them unduly, and encourages the Secretary-General to organize an informal event in 2010, within existing resources, on the potential of voluntary innovative sources of development finance; in 2008 and that a significant part of aid flows since 2002 has comprised debt relief and humanitarian assistance;
